a record of the college year for 1931 • 1932

Published annually by the Associated Students of the University of Nevada at Reno

To present a complete record of the college year at the University of Nevada, is the purpose of the 1932 Artemisia. ¶ Characterized by modern art, new types of lay-outs, and a change of style the Artemisia hopes to bring back to the students in the future, some of the memories of a year well spent. ¶ If, in time to come, you turn the pages of this, your Artemisia, and find some of the pleasant things which we all desire to remember, the book will have served its purpose, and the aims and desires of the editor and staff will have been realized.

DEDICATION

To the memory of the late Dean Charles Haseman, we, the staff of the 1932 Artemisia, dedicate this book. ¶ As a true friend of every individual student who knew him personally, Prof Charlie, as he was affectionately called and will be remembered, kept before him at all times the ideals of a greater Nevada Spirit and a greater University. His helpful advice and his undivided attention to both the large and small problems encountered by the student or group, make him a worthy guiding light by which our paths in the future may be set. ¶ With these thoughts in mind, and with the desire to perpetuate the memory of a True Nevadan, we set aside this volume as a fitting memorial to

ADMINISTRATION

Leaders in their field—the administrative heads of the University and of the Student Body. A guiding hand and a will to serve is always uppermost in their minds. In years to come, may we always remember our teachers and leaders with the respect and admiration due them.

ADMINISTRATION

Out of the hidden den the law,
and we shoulder to shoulder under it,
putting our strength upon the chosen road,
go farther in our day from dawn to dusk.

DOCTOR WALTER E. CLARK, President of the University

DEBT AND DUTY

FOR EACH HUMAN, heredity is fixed and natural environment is commonly given rather than chosen. Training, then, is the only one of the great triology of soul-growth factors whose results are conditioned upon conscious effort by the individual human. In typical American lives, it is largely through the formal means, the schools, that training gets its determining effects. Schooling years and schooling contacts and disciplines, within and without the classroom, mold heredity potentials into actual Americans. Most particularly is this molding influence in evidence during college years. Then do strengths and weaknesses become evident to selves and others. Then are bents discovered, habits of growth fixed and goals set. Then are wastrels winnowed, followers determined and leaders discovered and developed. Then are spirits lured into permanent habitation in the vital upper realms of mental and of spiritual power and progress.

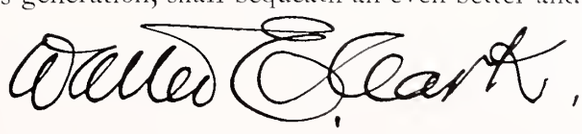

Faith in this high service of the college has been America's from the Jamestown and the Plymouth days until this hour. Colleges were begun by the landing generation; deep-souled Franklin laid college foundations in his City of Brotherly Love; Jefferson accounted as his greatest service that to Virginia's College; Washington bequeathed part of his fortune to the founding of a college in the nation's capital.

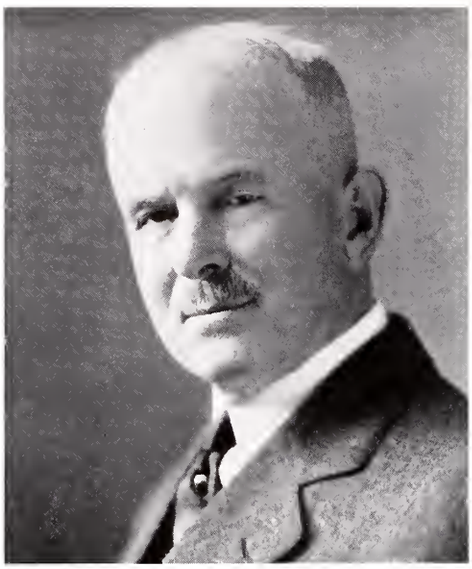

As the generations passed, American faith in the college as a means of soul growth grew. After two and a half centuries it had so grown that, even during the desperate later days of the Civil War, a stalwart Vermonter could lead the nation's lawmakers to adopt a policy guaranteeing substantial annual Federal aid to colleges to be developed in all of the states. The administration building on our own Campus was fittingly named in honor of this seer of the sixties, Senator Justin S. Morrill.

Today, in these colleges for all the people, made possible and continuously maintained by the cooperation of the nation and the states, tens of thousands of American youths are finding themselves and are preparing to play their part in America's great tomorrow. No one thing in all America is more indicative of America's working creed or more prophetic of America's conquering future than this golden chain of nearly half a hundred of colleges and universities, jointly supported by Federal and by State funds.

Our own University is a link in this American collegiate chain. It is well, then, that every present student should appreciate fully that his collegiate career, his best opportunity to discover and to develop his own hereditary gifts, is made possible through cooperation, unfailing through more than half a century, of these United States of America and this State of Nevada.

A full sensing of the abiding American faith in the worthfulness of the publicly supported college as a training camp for democracy's leaders, will bring to every student a new understanding of the dignity of his collegiate days. A full sensing of the continuing aid of all America, and of the continuing courage, generosity, and self-sacrifice of all of Nevada's citizens, needful, throughout the nearly sixty years, to make possible, to maintain, and to develop this Nevada training camp, of whose benefits he is a privileged partaker, will make every student's heart glow with gratitude. A full sensing that he is thus literally an heir of America's thought and sacrifice and faith and hope will surely bring every student to his knees before the shrine of loyalty and of service. Nor will he rise until he has pledged, solemnly and sacredly, in the presence of the eternal Recorder of all sincere pledges, that, throughout all of his allotted years, he will be loyal to the shaping ideals of American civilization: Liberty, founded by law drawn for the common weal, Equality of opportunity for all, and Justice, administered in accord with the dictates of the common will; and that, to the fullness of his allotted strength, he will serve, both alone and with others, to the high ends that uncleanness, greed, selfishness, and pride shall lessen, that cleanness, charity, comradeship and reverence shall widen, and that this, his generation, shall bequeath an even better and nobler civilization than came to it.

JOHN W. HALL, Dean of Education

THE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION is included as a division of the College of Arts and Science, but with its own dean, and is directly affiliated with the other colleges in co-operative work in the training of teachers. A liberal and professional course of study of four years is offered to prospective secondary-school teachers, and to those students looking forward to supervisory work and administrative positions in the schools of Nevada.

The Nevada State Normal School is also under the School of Education, and aims to give adequate preparation and training to those students of the University who wish to teach in the elementary schools. To achieve this purpose, courses in the theory and practice of teaching, and in academic subjects, are offered to the students.

Through the cooperation of the schools of Reno and Sparks, arrangements have been made whereby prospective teachers may have adequate practice, the instructors in the public schools and the School of Education supervising the work.

John W. Hall.

JOE F. MCDONALD, President of the Alumni Association

FOUNDED on the underlying principles of service, the University of Nevada Alumni Association has a worthwhile work to perform and each succeeding year discloses the value of the Association to the University and to the State. The Homecoming reunions are a concrete way of bringing together each year graduates and former students whose activities have taken them to points not far distant from the Campus, and who reap a direct benefit from the close contact with the University, and in turn directly benefit it. The Alumni Association endeavors to broadcast that same spirit of contact to the alumni in distant points, whose eyes turn each year to the Campus and in whose hearts there is an endearing love for the institution.

In this brief message I want to include a highly deserved tribute to our secretary, Mrs. Louise Lewers, who so earnestly guided the destinies of the organization for so many years. Presidents come and go at frequent intervals. Some leave the impress of their personality and vision behind them, but it is the secretary who performs the actual work.

Joe F. McDonald.

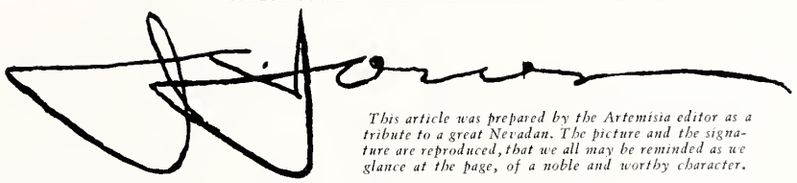

Doctor J. Claude Jones

On March 2, 1932, the Campus was saddened by the loss of Doctor Jones, one of the most beloved members of the faculty and one of the most sympathetic followers of student problems. In his capacity of Acting Dean of Men, he gained the respect, not only of the members of the student body, but of the faculty as well.

No better summarization of the character of Doctor Jones could be made than the one which appeared in the Sagebrush of March fourth, wherein the writer states, "He was a 'regular fellow' for all who knew him, and his ever ready smile, droll humor, and sincerity gained the confidence of everyone with whom he had cause to confer. He was both a comrade and a master among the students, and his early advice was much sought after.

"His passing robs the University of one of its staunchest friends and hardest workers."

This article was prepared by the Artemisia editor as a tribute to a great Nevadan. The picture and the signature are reproduced, that we all may be reminded as we glance at the page, of a noble and worthy character.

In a University where dormitories and dining halls are provided, as in the case of Nevada, the Dean of Women has general supervision over such living accommodations and frequently lives in one of these halls of residence. This affords an excellent opportunity to establish pleasant contacts which are often mutually helpful.

Other opportunities for contacts between student and Dean are afforded by means of the Student Affairs Committee, which is by no means entirely a disciplinary committee. The arranging for suitable time, place, and chaperons for social affairs requires several conferences. This furthers friendly relations between the Dean and the student.

The employment problem brings the student and Dean together in a more intimate relation than would be possible under the ordinary circumstances, making the Dean wish that work for deserving students might be created upon demand. It is through contacts like these that the Dean is afforded a clearer insight into the student mind and can realize more acutely the problems which confront the college man and woman.

Margaret E. Mack, Dean of Women

Louise M. Sissa, Registrar

DURING the two years immediately preceding this one, the enrollment at the University of Nevada showed an increase. This year, however, there is a slight decrease, which is very small considering the nation-wide depression. The enrollment for the last ten years has been as follows:

1923—803	1926— 913	1930—1046
1924—855	1927— 928	1931—1105
1925—926	1928—1002	1932—1052
	1929— 944

With their offices adjacent, the Registrar and the Comptroller do excellent team work during registration time. This year some innovations in the procedure of registration were introduced and carried out successfully through the cooperation of all concerned, whereby the time required was shortened quite materially.

The University of Nevada is on the approved list of American Universities. At the time the application for such placement was formally accepted, December, 1920, Nevada was the one hundred and thirty-fourth on the list.

Louise M. Sissa

Stanley Palmer, Acting Dean of Engineering

ALTHOUGH there has been a decrease in the enrollment of Freshman students in the College of Engineering, this decrease has been partly offset by an increase in the number of students entering the University with advanced standing, and of former students returning to complete their course.

Representatives of large industrial and operating companies, who have visited the Campus and offered employment to our graduates, advise students at the present time to continue their college work with post graduate studies when suitable employment cannot be found. Students in other engineering colleges are extensively following this program. This will probably result in an elevation of the standards of engineering education and possibly increase the demand for five-year engineering courses or post graduate work.

The completion of the Mackay Science Hall two years ago provided increased facilities for instruction in the sciences, prerequisite to engineering courses. This has resulted in an improvement in engineering work done in the upper classes. It has also stimulated interest in advanced science study by engineers with aptitude along scientific lines.

Stanley G Palmer

MAXWELL ADAMS, Dean of Arts and Science

SINCE OCTOBER 12, 1874, when the doors of the University were first opened to students at Elko, Nevada, a College of Arts and Science has been maintained. While the first curriculum was little more than high school work, it consisted chiefly of such subjects as have developed into the departments as we now recognize them. In 1886, when the University was moved to Reno, instruction was offered in assaying, but the main part of the course continued to consist of general cultural courses. During all these intervening years the University has continued to interest a large number of students in the purely academic and cultural subjects; at the present time the enrollment of the College of Arts and Science is more than double that of the next largest college in the University. Preliminary training leading to medicine, law, journalism, and other learned professions continues to increase in popularity, and more and more graduate courses are being offered by the various departments. The College of Arts and Science has introduced many practical subjects and has given less proportional time to Latin and Greek than in the first years, yet the general purpose has remained constant.

Maxwell Adams

CHARLES H. GORMAN, Comptroller

THE Treasurer and Comptroller is authorized to receive all moneys arising from gifts or bounties in any form to the University or for its benefit; all fees from students or others; proceeds from all sales of farm products or any personal property of whatever nature or kind; fees for services rendered in any manner and funds from any sources whatsoever other than in cases required by law to be paid to the Treasurer of the State. He keeps the accounts of the moneys in his custody in such separate funds as are necessary for proper and systematic accounting.

The Comptroller is the custodian of all student body apportionments to the various branches such as athletics, publications, classes, and organizations. With the installation of the Graduate Manager system at Nevada, all such disbursements are now made upon presentation of a requisition approved by the manager and by the Finance Control Committee.

C. H. Gorman

ROBERT STEWART, Dean of Agriculture

THE COLLEGE OF AGRICULTURE, including the School of Home Economics, has maintained about the same enrollment this year as in the past. The total number of students enrolled in the College of Agriculture for the year is 51, and in the School of Home Economics, 47. In May, ten students will receive the degree of Bachelor of Science in Agriculture, which is the largest graduating class in the history of this college. The degree of Bachelor of Science in Home Economics will be conferred upon six women. These men and women are prepared to take an important part in the leadership of their communities and of the state. There are many fields open to these graduates. The majority go out as teachers, extension workers, research workers; a number of the men return to the farms, and a large proportion of the women become home-makers.

The students of the College of Agriculture, through their student organizations known as the "Aggie" Club and the Home Economics Club, take an active part in the life of the University as well as in the welfare of their respective college.

Robert Stewart

J. A. FULTON, Director of the Mackay School of Mines

THE MACKAY SCHOOL OF MINES offers a four-year course in mining, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Mining Engineering, which prepares students to become mining engineers, metallurgists, and mining geologists. Also, a one-year graduate course is offered, leading to the degree of Master of Science in Mining. The school is provided with the equipment necessary to teach courses in mining, metallurgy, and geology, these forming the basic courses in mining education. The Mining Department also maintains a large library containing several thousand volumes on various mining subjects, and recently it has been greatly enlarged, due to gifts and purchases.

Although above the average for a number of preceding years, the enrollment of the Mackay School of Mines shows a slight decrease in students registered for the past period. With a number of applications and inquiries by prospective students already received from all over the United States, the outlook for the coming year is encouraging.

J. A. Fulton

GEORGE S. BROWN, Chairman of the Board of Regents

THE BOARD OF REGENTS greets the student body! For want of frequent contact, our board may seem to you a thing shadowy and remote. The reality of our relationships may be more clearly seen, however, when its duties are understood. It is our board which is directly responsible to the people of Nevada for the management of the University. Not only are the administration of the finances of the University, its government, courses of studies, and the personnel of the faculty committed by law to its supervision, but even the diplomas are issued by this board, upon the recommendation of the President, "to those who worthily complete the full course of study" in any school of the University.

The Board of Regents is deeply concerned and vitally interested in the welfare of the University, its progress and improvement, but more deeply concerned and more vitally interested in the use by the student body of the opportunities it affords. When you do well, we rejoice.

During the past scholastic year we have noted with satisfaction the earnest zeal of the students and the quiet harmony that prevailed. We take pride in the records of those graduates who have honored their alma mater by commendable service and successful leadership.

WILLIAM R. BLACKLER, Master of Lincoln Hall

LINCOLN HALL this year closes its thirty-sixth year of service in accommodating Nevada men. As the University of Nevada has stood for progress and achievement, so Lincoln Hall has always sponsored those ideals, motives, and objectives, which make for a higher scholastic plane; a happier and more profitable college life; closer and richer friendships, and an opportunity to enjoy social life of the most desirable type.

Lincoln Hall Association, membership in which is open to all residents, is the organization which has continually promoted and advanced the aforementioned ideals in the daily contacts of the men of the Hall. It has encouraged cooperation on the part of every man in the Hall, with the result that considerable advancement has been made in scholastic achievement, participation in student activities and social contacts.

STUDENT ADMINISTRATION

Out of our number we have chosen you,
and given you the burden with the brightness.
It well befits that you should wear a thoughtfulness, and walk with a firm sound.

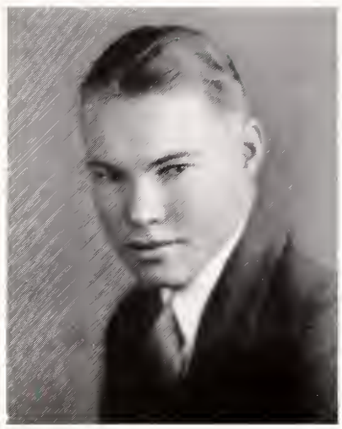

EDWIN CANTLON was selected by the student body to serve as their leader for the 1931-1932 year, after having held the office of student body treasurer during the previous term. He is a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon, social fraternity; Coffin and Keys, upperclass honorary organization; Campus Players, dramatic society; and Omega Mu Iota, pre-medical honorary. In addition, he has served as a member of the Sophomore Vigilance Committee, the Upperclass Committee, the Executive Committee, the Finance Control Committee, and the Mackay Day Committee. His executive ability and his pleasing personality won for him the highest honor attainable by any member of the student body, and his hard work and attention to duties have marked him as one of Nevada's best leaders.

MARGARET WALTS, Vice-President

KATHRYN LIGON, Secretary

KEITH LEE, Treasurer

STUDENT BODY GOVERNMENT

STUDENT body government at the University of Nevada is organized into an association of all the students enrolled in the University, and from among whom officers are elected at the end of each spring semester to serve for the following year. Meetings of the association are held bi-monthly, at which time matters of interest to the student body as a whole are discussed. The officers for the year 1931-1932 were: Edwin Cantlon, President; Margaret Walts, Vice-President; Kathryn Ligon, Secretary; Keith Lee, Treasurer; Calvin Bannigan and Sam Arentz, Junior and Sophomore representatives to the Executive Committee; Paul Harwood and J. E. Martie, Faculty representatives to the Finance Control Committee; and Bernard Hartung, Graduate Manager; Frances Fuller and Walter Mitchell, Men's and Women's representatives to Finance Control; and Nick Basta and Francis Smith, representatives to the Publications Board.

The authority of the association is vested in the Executive Committee, composed of the following members: The president, who acts as chairman; the vice-president; the secretary; the treasurer; and one Junior and one Sophomore representative, chosen at the general election.

WOMEN'S UPPERCLASS COMMITTEE:
Margaret Walts, Beatrice Patterson, Elizabeth Seeds, Constance Phillips, Mildred Huber, Ruth Sauer, Mary Ruth Seamon.

STUDENT BODY GOVERNMENT

THE FULL CONTROL of all A. S. U. N. finances is vested in the Finance Control Committee, which consists of five voting members, and delegates from each organization on the Campus. A member of the faculty, appointed by the Executive Committee, acts as chairman. Although very efficient in past years, the Finance Control Committee is even more so at the present time, due to the actions of its executive officer, the Graduate Manager. A very accurate check is maintained on finances through a system of vouchers, which are kept on file in the A. S. U. N. office. During the past year, the Association handled an excess of $45,000.

Each student automatically becomes a member of the Association upon the completion of his registration and payment of the regular fees, which are ten dollars for each semester. These fees include all athletic dues, publications charges, and class apportionments. The spirit of democracy which exists, and the active cooperation of all its members, has placed the organization on a level with similar organizations in larger colleges.

In addition to the student body proper, there are many divisions, which are controlled by the student administration. Among these are the Publications, the Managerial System in Athletics, and the Associated Women Students, which is headed by the Vice-President.

MEN'S UPPERCLASS COMMITTEE:
Raymond Hackett, Harold Sanford, Walter Mitchell, Mathew Mohorovich, Norman Blundell, Edwin Cantlon, John Griffin.

Homecoming Day Committee:
Irvin Ayer, Malcolm Blakely, Ethel Hanson, Verna Selmer, Clifford Devine, Harold Sanford, Louie Gardella.

STUDENT BODY GOVERNMENT

Much of the important work of the Association is done by committees appointed by the President and the Vice-President. The enforcement of traditions is left to the upperclass committees. The men's upperclass committee handles those cases of violations which the Sophomores are unable to cope with, while the women's committee has complete charge over all women students at the University.

The two biggest celebrations of the year, Homecoming Day and Mackay Day, are in charge of a representative group of students from the various departments participating in the events. It is the duty of both committees to see that the events of the two days are all arranged for, and that the Campus is so organized as to make the most of the celebrations.

In addition to the more important committees, several of lesser importance, but yet of a necessary nature, assist the President in carrying out the duties of the year. The Frosh Handbook Committee, the Student Union Committee, the Coaches' Committee, and others, all perform valuable services.

In the field of sports, the constitution of the Association provides for a managerial system, with one manager and four assistants, and as many Freshmen as are willing to try out, for each athletic activity.

Mackay Day Committee:
Fred Wilson, Ed Bath, Jack Myles, Eldridge Farnsworth, Jack Smith, Verna Selmer, John Winters, Lawrence Zoebel, Edmund Recanzone, James Wallace.

CLASSES

Seniors, Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen—each a unit in the University. Memories of class functions; of friendships formed that will last through the years; a gradual building up of knowledge and understanding until that last glorious day when we really start life.

First Semester

Four years ago, at the first meeting of the class of thirty-two, officers to lead the group were chosen. The balloting resulted in the election of Myron Adams as President, Nancy Mitchell as Vice-President; Cecile Dodsen as Secretary, and Bennett Johnson as Treasurer. The second semester saw Harold Johnson, President; Marion Stone, Vice-President; Mary Baird, Secretary; and Kent Ingalls, Treasurer, holding office. Under the leadership of Fred Wilson as class fight captain, the Freshmen won the Field Day and attained the half-way mark toward the traditional right of any class that is victorious for two years to wear derbies and white vests.

The second year at the University of Nevada was a successful one under the direction of Tom Penrose, President; Wilma Fitzgerald, Vice-President; Margaret Walts, Secretary; George Adamson, Treasurer; for the first semester; and Kent Ingalls, President; Louise Gastanaga, Vice-President; Ethel Hanson, Secretary; Adelbert States, Treasurer; for the second semester. The duties of Fight Captain were again entrusted to Fred Wilson, and he led the Sophomore class to victory over the incoming Freshmen, giving the members of the second-year class the undisputed right to sport the derbies, vests, and canes.

Since the first two years, the membership of the present Senior class has changed noticeably. Old familiar faces of those who have transferred to other schools, or who have been unable to continue University, are no longer seen. But new faces have taken their places, and the class now boasts one hundred and sixty members.

Fewer changes in membership were noticed during the Junior year. Leaders of the class during the two semesters were: John Griffin and Adelbert States, Presidents; Jane Harcourt and Doris Welsh, Vice-Presidents; Virginia Cole and May Vuich, Secretaries; and Raymond Poncia and Joe Jackson, Treasurers.

Second Semester

In the spring of 1931, at the final meeting of the class, the following were selected to serve in official capacities during the fall semester: Jack Leahigh, President; Virginia Garside, Vice-President; Blanche Cosby, Secretary; and Joseph Jackson, Treasurer. However, Leahigh failed to return to school, and Virginia Garside took over the executive duties of the class. The seniors have no functions to sponsor during the fall semester, and organize merely to take care of any contingencies which may arise.

Elections for the spring semester saw Robert Bankofier placed in the office of President. Ethel Hanson was chosen Vice-President; Anne Gregory, Secretary; and Calvin Dodsen, Treasurer. Several important activities face the graduating class during the spring semester, outstanding among which are the Senior Memorial, the Senior Picnic, and the various events of Senior Week. At the beginning of the semester, President Bankofier appointed the following committees to take charge of these affairs: Senior Memorial: Nick Basta, chairman, and Josephine Bernard; Senior Picnic: Elmer Perry, chairman, Eldridge Farnsworth, Wilbur Hannibal, Mary Baird, and Betty Allen; Senior Week, Norman Blundell, chairman, Irvin Ayer, Philip Delongchamps, May Vuich, Jean Zuick, and Ethel Hanson.

In accordance with the traditional custom, the final week of school was reserved for the events of Senior Week. Activities planned included the Senior parade to the last A. S. U. N. meeting of the year, the Senior-Faculty baseball game, the Senior Picnic, the final pilgrimage around the Campus, visiting familiar landmarks, the Associated Women Students' Tea for the graduates, and Baccalaureate and Commencement exercises. With the completion of these events the class of 1932 has written its chapter into the history of the University, and has gone to swell the ranks of the alumni.

JUNIOR CLASS

ALBERT SEELIGER, President

First Semester

THE PRESENT JUNIOR CLASS is one of the largest third-year classes ever to attend the University, there being approximately one hundred and seventy students registered as members. Immediately after registration in the fall semester, the class organized under the leadership of Albert Seeliger, President; Margaret Rawson, Vice-President; Fred Tong, Treasurer; and Eva Edwards, Secretary. Plans for the Junior Prom, the annual class formal of the Junior Class, were made. The committee, consisting of Kathryn McCormack, Phillip Mann, Alonzo Priest, Theodore Moore, Irvin Ayres, Florence Lehmkuhl, Gladys Clark, and Chairman Clifford Devine, combined their efforts to present one of the outstanding formals of the year. The dance was held at the Century Club, which was decorated with flowers and potted plants to represent a South Sea Island scene.

Throughout the fall semester, the class was well represented in student body activities. Members of the class served on various student committees and on the three publications. Several of the stars of the football season were members of the class of thirty-three.

At a meeting late in the year, officers for the spring semester were chosen. The balloting resulted in the election of Theodore Lunsford as President, Florence Lehmkuhl as Vice-President, Mason Myers as Treasurer, and Kathryn Ligon as Secretary. Activities for the spring were outlined early in the semester, and the various committees necessary for carrying out the plans were appointed.

The first event of the semester, sponsored by the Junior Class, was the Junior Jump, the annual dance held after the last game of the state basketball tournament. Although the affair is open to the out-of-town visitors, the immediate purpose is to raise money for the class to present the Senior Ball.

THE COMMITTEE FOR THE JUMP, consisting of Kenneth Johnson as chairman, Kathryn Ligon, Kathryn McCormack, Katherine Wright, Keith Lee, Walter Baring, Frances Barnes, and Raymond Hooper, planned a novel dance with clever decorations, bue due to conflict with other dances held in Reno on the same night, were unable to secure a very large crowd. As a result, the committee in charge of the Senior Ball has been severely handicapped. At the time of this writing the members of the committee, Kathryn McCormack, Harold Brown, Phillip Mann, Eva Edwards, Edmund Recanzone, Florence Lehmkuhl, and Millicent Johnson, chairman, are trying to devise some method of raising money so that the members of the graduating class will not be deprived of their traditional dance.

April fourteenth was selected as the date for Junior Cut Day. Members of the class spent the day in various ways; some used the day as an opportunity to catch up on back lessons; others found it a convenient time to catch up on lost sleep; while others spent their time at Pyramid Lake and other favorite picnic grounds. The committee in charge of the day was composed of Albert Seeliger as chairman, Vernon Loveridge, Helen Peterson, Mary Tucker, Blythe Bulmer, and Merwin White.

Two members of the Junior Class served as editors of Campus publications during the past year. John Mariani was in charge of the Desert Wolf for the year 1931-1932, and was recently re-elected to serve in the capacity of editor for the 1932-1933 year. The editorship of the 1932 Artemisia was in the hands of Elbert Walker.

The class of '33 boasts of members in all the representative groups on the Campus, and has exhibited an unusual amount of spirit in all of its undertakings.

SOPHOMORE CLASS

Dan Harvey, President
First Semester

James Wallace, President
Second Semester

UNDER the guidance of James Wallace and Dan Harvey, class presidents, the Sophomores have been very successful in conducting their activities this year. The setback received in the annual class fights at the hands of the Frosh did not interfere with the duties of the second year men in seeing that Nevada's traditions were not violated, and the frequent lakings and paddlings for Freshmen offenders testified to the efficiency of the Soph vigilance committee. The gang fights that frequently occurred at lakings in former years were not present, and the Sophomores conducted the punishment in an orderly, business-like manner.

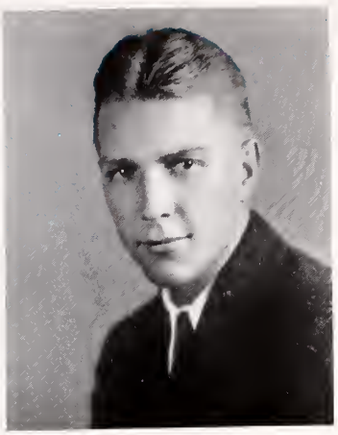

The annual Sophomore Hop was held at the Nevada State building on October 3. The decorations were in a modernistic silhouette theme and the committee, under the direction of Charles Koerner, spent a great deal of effort on the affair.

The activities of the class of '34 for the second semester were confined chiefly to the presentation of a Circus Ball immediately following the varsity's last basketball game. Almost instantly the gym was transformed into a huge tent with clowns, animals, sideshows, and flags that were necessary to the real circus atmosphere. The committee, headed by Thomas Hilberg, deserved a great deal of credit for the success and originality of the event.

All in all this was a decidedly successful year for the class of '34, and its spirit was highly commendable. Officers for the first semester were: Jim Wallace, President; Dorothy Rose, Vice-President; Pearl Romwall, Secretary; Elmer Hawkins, Treasurer. Second semester: Dan Harvey, President; Mary Thompson, Vice-President; Virginia Cross, Secretary; and Ed Martinez, Treasurer.

Kenneth Maclean, President
Second Semester

Beginning a highly successful year with a "bang" the Frosh class showed its superiority over the Sophomores by handing them a decisive beating in the annual class fights on Field Day. The Freshmen won two of the boxing contests and the tire rush to gain the victory and the possibility of wearing the coveted white vests and derbies if again successful next year.

Once each semester the Frosh turned out to give the "N" its annual coat of whitewash. The large number of men present put in a hard day's work to put the huge letter in shape for another year.

On April 2 the Frosh Glee, first campus formal of the spring semester, was held at the Century Club. The hall was cleverly decorated with ballons and crepe paper, and the committee, headed by Orison Miller, deserves great credit for the success of the affair.

On Mackay Day the Freshmen were again victorious over the Sophs in the tug-of-war, pulling them through the lake in almost record time.

The class of '35 has been very outstanding in athletics this year, having a winning team in both football and basketball. Both squads played and defeated most of the high school teams in this part of the state. Chet Scranton coached both Frosh aggregations, and has developed some excellent varsity material.

Much of the credit for the success of this year's Freshman class is due to the ability and hard work of the class officers. For the first semester they were: Orison Miller, President; Dorothy Nason, Vice-President; Peggy Smith, Secretary; and Carleton McCullough, Treasurer. Second semester: Kenneth Maclean, President; Virginia Sauers, Vice-President; Margaret Richards, Secretary; and Clark Weigand, Treasurer.

FOOTBALL SEASON 1931

Marked by flashes of brilliancy and mediocrity, the football season of 1931 proved to be very discouraging and disheartening to the local fans. Two wins and two ties were overbalanced by five defeats. Starting out with a team that looked like a world-beater, the Nevada boys expected to go a long way in the Far Western Conference. They believed that at the least there would be only two games lost, but as it happened, there were only two victories. Individuals on the squad showed up well consistently but seemed to lack the team work and football strategy to get results. Statistical summaries of the games show the Wolves well up in yardage gained through running plays, passes, and punts, but the entire season was characterized by the lack of a scoring punch on the part of Nevada when the opportunity to score arose.

West Coast Army

Came the season's opener, and the Nevada Wolves tangled with the boys from the Presidio at San Francisco. The Army, prior to the Nevada game, had lost to the Olympic Club, but had benefitted from the experience and managed to hold the Pack to a scoreless tie. The game was lacking in brilliant plays and resolved itself into a struggle between the goal lines. The Jarheads made their strongest bid for a touchdown when two passes put the ball on Nevada's three-yard line with a first down and goal to go. However, the Nevada line held for four successive downs. Considering the fact that the visitors made a specialty of the passing game, the Pack's showing was not at all disappointing for an early-season contest.

FOOTBALL SEASON 1931

Coach Philbrook was pleased with the outcome as a whole, but recognized that there was yet much work to be done.

Brigham Young University

For the second game of the season the Wolves played host to the Cougars from Provo, Utah. Nevada was expected to experience little trouble with the comparatively weak B. Y. U. team, but received a very disappointing setback because of ignorance of the rules, losing the game, 18-14. The winning touchdown was made when one of the Brigham Young men fell on the ball over the goal line after a kick-off. The Pack should have won by at least two touchdowns, the records showing that the Nevada backs reeled off 224 yards from scrimmage to Brigham Young's 153, scored two more first downs, and outpunted the Cougars throughout the game.

California Aggies

Officially opening the Far Western Conference schedule, Nevada journeyed to Sacramento to meet the Mustangs from Davis in the Wolves' first night game, and returned home with a 12-0 defeat in their suitcase. It might have been the glare of the lights and the new experience of playing ball at night, or it might have been the disheartening defeat received at the hands of Brigham Young the week before that had something to do with the Wolves' showing. Two things are certain: Nevada didn't play the ball she was capable of playing, and the Aggies furnished more opposition than was looked for. The end runs of Harvey Hill and the accurate passing of Jack Hill featured the team's play. Nevada lacked the drive that was necessary to score touchdowns, and after backing the Farmers up to their own goal line three times in the second quarter, failed successively to shove the ball over.

FOOTBALL SEASON 1931

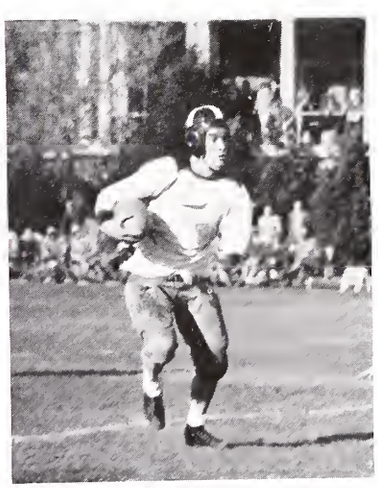

College of Pacific

Nevada's second conference tilt ended in a scoreless tie with the College of Pacific eleven. In this game Coach Philbrook's men pushed the lighter team all over the field, but failed to score when the opportunity arose. Three times the Wolf Pack was within scoring distance of the opponents' goal, but on each occasion lacked the scoring punch. It looked like the Wolves would do things in the third quarter when a concerted march was made down the field, but just when they were about to push over the winning touchdown one of the Nevada men fumbled, and their hopes vanished. Records show that Nevada made 138 yards from scrimmage to 38 for the College of Pacific, but in every instance advances into scoring territory were terminated by fumbles or poor choice of plays.

Fresno State

The feature of Homecoming Day—the first victory of the 1931 season for the Wolf Pack. That was the game with the Fresno Teachers, and when the final gun sounded Nevada had rolled up 31 points to the visitors' 13. Bright with the gay uniforms of hundreds of visiting Shriners, the crowd, numbering over 6,000, that saw Nevada break the jinx and fight a victorious, thrilling game, was the largest and most colorful ever to overflow the Mackay bleachers. For the first time in the season the backfield clicked accurately, while the line played superbly, allowing few substantial gains through that sector. For clever running Jack Hill shared honors with Harvey Hill, Neil Scott, and George Bloedell; while John Griffin, Milt Young, Hugh Towle, Bill Backer and Gaile Parsons made their share of the yardage that took the Wolves triumphantly to the goal line five times. Coach Philbrook used two sets of backfields during the first half, and started a freshened Pack in the third quarter which chalked up three of the touchdowns in that period. Fresno's two tallies were made in the fourth quarter, after Philbrook had made several second and third string substitutions.

SAN JOSE STATE

A complete second string backfield functioned surprisingly well in the game with San Jose, and, as a result, the Wolf Pack chalked up its second and last win of the 1931 season, the final score standing Nevada 18, San Jose 0. The game was featured by the shifty running of Lee Priest, the excellent passing of Beasley, the blocking of Backer and Harris, and the pass reception of Griffin. Nevada scored in the first quarter when Backer recovered a fumble and Lee Priest made a 30-yard run to the goal line. A concerted march down the field in the second quarter was successfully terminated by Priest, who again went over for a touchdown. The Nevada drive continued in the fourth period, and two perfectly executed forward passes gave the Wolves the ball within scoring distance. After advancing the ball by running plays, Backer scored the third touchdown. The Wolf forwards opened holes time and again in the San Jose line, and were to a great extent responsible for the victory. Nearly the entire Nevada squad got into the game.

UNIVERSITY OF CALIFORNIA

The usual large band of hopeful and enthusiastic Nevada supporters accompanied the team to Berkeley, only to see the Wolves turned back by the strongest eleven California has developed in years. Hopes were realized to some extent, however, when Nevada scored on the Golden Bear for the first time since 1927. Nevada went into the game the under-dog, but before the end showed a spirit and fight which gained the support and admiration of the entire crowd. Although California came out on the long end of a 25 to 6 score, the game was far from being a walkaway for the Bears. Nevada's score was made in the final quarter, when Hugh Towle tossed a perfect 20-yard forward pass to Harvey Hill, and the fleet half outdistanced his pursuers the remaining 21 yards to the goal. Toward the close of the game the Nevada eleven showed signs of the terrifie punishment they were taking, but continued to fight valiantly against a perpetual string of California reserves.

STANFORD

For the last game of the season away fom home the Nevada Wolves journeyed to Palo Alto to take on "Pop" Warner's gridders, and were sent back with a 26-0 defeat. Unable to handle the powerful Stanford eleven, the Pack was put on the defensive throughout practically the entire game, coming to life once when a 70-yard drive put them within a half yard of the goal line. The Stanford men romped into scoring territory four times during the game; on ten other occasions Nevada's forward wall grimly held. Stanford was held scoreless in the first quarter, but made up for it in the second by twice carrying the ball across Nevada's goal. The third quarter was again scoreless, and in the final heat the Cardinals added two touchdowns and converted each to bring the final score up to 26. Griffin was by far the outstanding Nevada man, both offensively and defensively.

San Francisco University

To conclude an already unsuccessful season, the Nevada eleven suffered the worst defeat of the year at the hands of the University of San Francisco gridders, losing by a 40-7 score. About thirty loyal Nevada students, clothed in sheepskins and heavy blankets, watched their team make a final effort for Alma Mater, while the snow and sleet whipped around the field. At the beginning of the second half, Harvey Hill, the sensational Freshman from Fallon, furnished the one big thrill of the game for the Nevadans when he broke away around his own left end and raced 65 yards for the Wolves' lone touchdown, Backer making the extra point. Donadio of San Francisco was evidently irked by this, and not to be outdone by any Nevada man, took the next kick-off and ran down the field 95 yards to a touchdown. From then on it was slaughter, with Kleckner running wild and Donadio repeating his initial performance, adding several long gains to S. F. U.'s steadily growing yardage column. The Wolves were unable to do anything, their defense being especially ineffective, while holes were opened in the Nevada line time after time. Thus ended the season.

1932 FOOTBALL OUTLOOK

George Philbrook, Coach

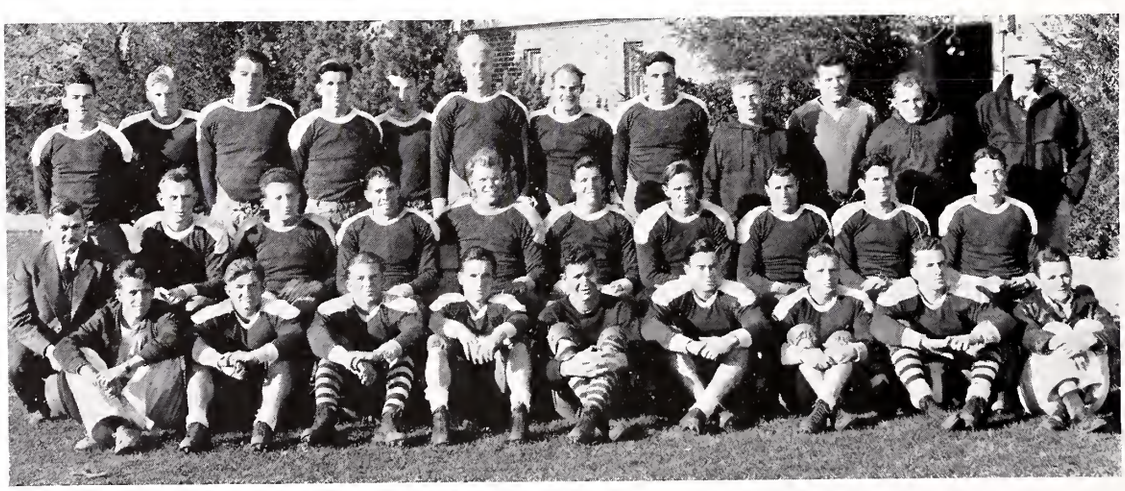

Coach George W. Philbrook, who has directed activities of the Nevada football and track squads for the past three years, was released from his contract in March, 1932, after turning out several fairly strong teams, and with the advent of a new coach next fall a rejuvenated spirit on the Campus is expected to brighten the outlook of the Wolf Pack for the 1932 season.

After considerable deliberation and negotiation, C. L. "Brick" Mitchell was selected by the coaches' committee as football and track mentor for the 1932 season. Mitchell comes to Nevada with an enviable playing and coaching record. He played football at the University of Oregon for three years, twice being chosen All-Pacific Coast Conference end. In 1917, he was selected by Walter Camp as All-American end from among the service elevens in the United States. Mitchell began his coaching career as head coach of the Olympic Club in 1920. From 1922 to 1926 he directed athletics at San Mateo high school, two years turning out state championship football teams. In 1927 he went to the University of California as head freshman coach, and became varsity line coach three seasons later. Mitchell was automatically released from California with the introduction of a new system and a new coaching staff, and immediately prior to coming to Nevada was engaged in the sporting goods business in San Francisco.

Although the material next year is not expected to be unusually strong, with but two graduating, Mitchell will have a strong nucleus around which to build a team.

The Wolf Pack is scheduled to meet eight strong university and college elevens during the coming season. The opener will find the Wolves clashing with Oregon State Normal on Mackay Field on September 24. The following Saturday Nevada will meet the Gaels of St. Marys in San Francisco, and on October 8 will journey eastward to Ogden to meet the University of Utah in a night game. The Wolves will have a breathing spell on October 15, an open date, before meeting the California Aggies on Mackay Field in the annual Homecoming Day game. They will then take on California, San Jose, and the Olympic Club on consecutive Saturdays, the first of these games to be played in Berkeley, and the final two on the home turf. The season will be closed on Thanksgiving day, when the Pack meets the Fresno State eleven in Fresno.

FRESHMAN FOOTBALL

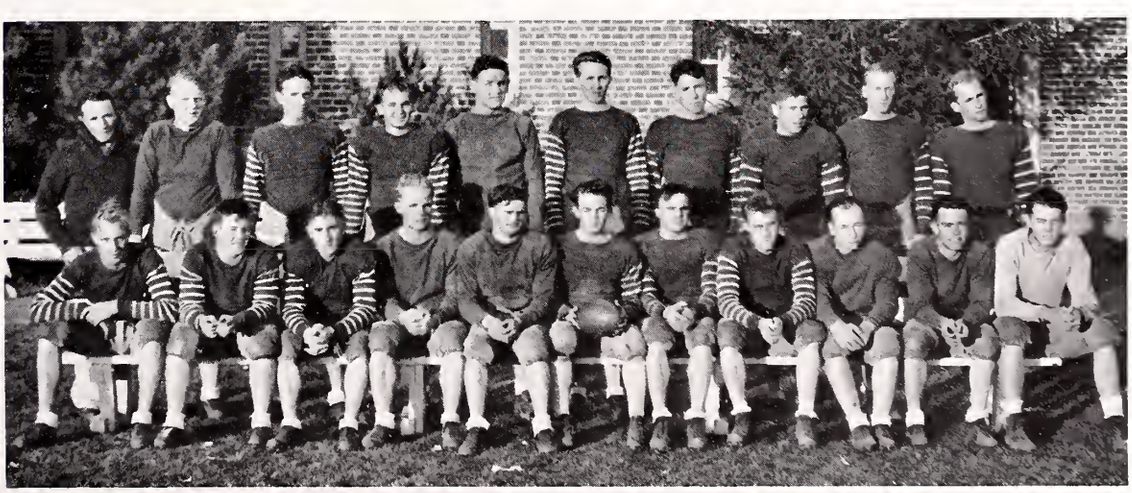

CHET SCRANTON, Coach

COACH CHESTER M. SCRANTON directed his Freshman understudies through a very successful season on the gridiron, winning four out of the six games on the schedule. Due to the eligibility of Freshmen on the varsity squad, the yearling team has been robbed of much of the best material in the class, and has found most of its competition among high school and club teams in this section of the state.

The yearlings underwent a fairly stiff schedule, and fared much better than the varsity for the season as a whole. The season opened with a battle with the Indians from the Stewart school, which the Wolf Cubs won by an extremely narrow margin, the final score being 6-0. The next week end the Freshmen met the Reno Antlers club eleven, and won their first and only decisive victory of the season when they romped away with a 30-6 score in their favor. Two scrimmages with Sparks increased the experience of the members of the team, and they managed to keep their slate clean until they played the Reno High School squad in the annual Homecoming Day encounter. On that day the varsity came through with its first win of the season, while the Freshmen went down to their first defeat by the heartbreaking score of 7-6. The Reno High team lost no time in getting under way, and on the opening kick-off one of their backfield men raced over the goal line for a touchdown, afterward converting for the extra point that won the game. It was near the end of the last quarter before the Wolf Cubs finally got going and pushed over a touchdown, but failed to make the conversion to tie the score.

After losing their big game, the Freshmen lost their next engagement to Fallon High School, 6-0 ,and finished the season by defeating the Reno Antlers club a second time, 13-12. Many of the members of the squad developed rapidly and will materially increase the strength of the varsity squad next year. Members of the Freshman team who received their numerals are: Vic Carroll, John Lee, Clayton Phillips, Clarence Elkins, John Pauer, Bob Hansen, John Sullivan, James Clark, Kenneth Maclean, Jack Adams, Lloyd Mills, Charles Worn, Ed Bath, Woodrow Carnay, John Dennison, Herman Freudenberg, Dale Hart, Ernie Mack, Lloyd Nelson, and Ed Pine.

1932 BASKETBALL SEASON

Winning the first Far Western Conference basketball championship they have ever secured, the 1932 University of Nevada basketball team completed a highly successful season under the direction of Coach J. E. Martie. Nevada lost but four of the seventeen scheduled games, one of these being a conference engagement, and finished the season with a percentage of .900 in the Far Western Conference standings.

Several of the fastest and most exciting hoop contests seen on the local court in years resulted from the closeness of the conference race, the championship of the Wolves not being definitely determined until the final game with the California Aggies in the University gymnasium. Nevada took part in two extra-period games, the first with the Chico State quintet, in which two extra periods of play were required to determine a winner in the second game of the two-game series. One extra period was required in the first contest with the California Aggies. Three of the thirteen members of this year's victorious aggregation have played their last game of basketball for Nevada. John Griffin and Bob Bankofier, first string guards, who played a large part in most of the Wolves' victories, and Edge Farnsworth, dependable forward, will no longer appear in a Nevada basketball uniform. All of the members of the squad will receive gold basketballs, while eleven of the men played in a sufficient number of games to earn Block "N" awards. These were: Bob Bankofier, Roy Bankofier, Dan Bledsoe, Victor Carroll, Bruce Gould, John Griffin, Edge Farnsworth, Ray Hackett, Harold Curran, Lloyd Guffrey, and Bob Leighton. Manager Al Seeliger was also awarded a sweater.

Nevada opened its basketball season during the Christmas holidays, when the Wolves met the San Francisco State Teachers College quintet in two early-season practice encounters. Little trouble was experienced in overcoming the Teachers, despite the fact that these were the first games for Nevada. All of the men on the squad had an opportunity to show what they could do, and most of them came through in fine fashion, as the scores may indicate. Nevada took the first game by a 34-18 score, and more than doubled the total of their opponents' on the second night, winning 46-22.

Albert Seeliger, Manager

In a third pre-season encounter Nevada met Olson's Terrible Swedes, heralded as the world's championship traveling basketball team, and went down to a 24-16 defeat. However, the Wolves gained valuable experience in meeting this smoothly-working quintet.

St. Marys

Playing two of the best games of basketball seen in the local gymnasium for some time, the Nevada Wolf Pack met the Gaels of Moraga and defeated them in both contests by close scores. In the first night of play the going was close until the latter part of the first half, when Nevada started on a scoring rampage and placed themselves well out in the lead, the half ending 14-6.

The second period was much faster than the first, with St. Marys starting the scoring. It was not long, however, before the Wolves again found themselves. Guffrey, reserve forward, dropped two free throws and scored two long shots to get Nevada out of danger. When the whistle blew Nevada was on the long end of a 28-19 score.

On the second night Nevada started one of the flashiest offenses they exhibited all year, and shortly before the end of the half were leading 19-1. The Gaels then began to get their plays to working, and the half ended 21-8. In the second half Nevada let up a bit, while the visitors were not slow to take advantage of their opportunity. Johnson of the Gaels kept the basket warm with his sensational shots, but the Nevada men could not be headed in the short time that remained, and finished with a three-point lead, the score reading 34-31.

Chico State

Winning the first game away from home, the Nevada basketeers took Chico into camp by a 34-23 score in the first game of the two-game series. The Wolves found the going easy throughout, never being in very much danger. The starting lineup of Bledsoe and Gould, forwards; Carroll, center; and Griffin and Bob Bankofier, guards, played through until the last half, when Farnsworth was substituted for Gould.

On the second night the Chico quintet looked like an entirely different team, and actually outfought the Wolves throughout most of the game. The contest was unusually close, the score being tied, 29-29, at the close of the regular forty-minute playing period. After an extra period of five minutes the teams were still tied, and a second additional stanza was necessary to determine the victor. Chico barely nosed out Nevada in a closing rush to win, 34-32.

Stowell, Center | Lee, Forward | Leighton, Forward | R. Bankofier, Forward | Gould, Center

Griffin, Guard

San Jose State

Coming from behind in the final minutes of play, Nevada added to its growing string of victories, defeating the San Jose State hoopsters by a 32-26 score in the first game of the series. The contest was featured by the rally of the Nevadans, who overtook their opponents to bring the crowd to its feet as the game ended.

In the second game the Nevada squad duplicated its feat of the previous night and in another whirlwind rush in the last five minutes of play ran up the final score, 28-24. Toby Guffrey, Nevada forward, played a speedy game and added considerably to the Nevada offense. Bledsoe was again high point man.

Fresno State

Tightening their grip on the leadership of the conference, the Nevadans trounced Fresno in a two-game series in the California city. Both contests were marred by an unusual number of fouls.

The contest the first night was closer than the score would indicate and Coach Martie had to use his strongest combinations to keep Nevada in the scoring position. Nevada led at the half, 21-17, and although Fresno got the upper hand in the second half the Wolves finished out with 44 points to 34 for the Bulldogs.

In the second game the Teachers entered with a grim determination to win and took an early lead, but it was soon cut down. Gould led the scoring for this period. The half ended 15-9 in favor of the Wolves, and they maintained this lead to win out with a score of 31-24.

College of the Pacific

Playing a rather slow game of ball, the Wolf Pack downed the hoop squad from the College of the Pacific in their first game by a 29-18 score. The Nevada squad appeared dead on their feet during the first half and passed wildly and fumbled frequently. During the last four minutes several substitutes were sent in and served to get the game going. Bledsoe again led the scoring with 10 points.

The game showed a marked improvement over the contest of the evening before. Nevada was leading at the half, 21-5, and maintained a lead although the Bengals rallied and tightened up the score. The game ended 35-29 in favor of the Wolves.

San Francisco University

In their last series away from home the Nevada cagers dropped two straight to the S. F. U. quintet. Led by "Happy" Chambers and "Big Bob" Kleckner, the Dons took advantage of the stage fright of the Wolves and romped all around them. At no stage of either game did the Nevada squad threaten and they seemed virtually lost on the big floor of the Kezar Pavilion. The score for the first game was 25-15. In the second game, Kleckner was the big obstacle in the path of the Wolves, and broke up their passing game at every play. The Dons came through the second night for another win, the final score being 29-15.

California Aggies

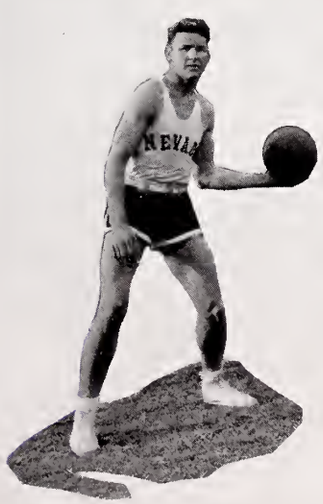

The season was closed by the Wolves in high form as they swept through for a double win over the strong Cal. Aggies to clinch the Far Western Conference championship with nine wins and one defeat to their credit.

Friday night the Wolves and Aggies both played a fast breaking offensive game which kept the score tied throughout, and the contest closed with a 30-30 score. An extra period was called and Nevada didn't lose any time in running up a safe margin to beat the Mustangs, 40-32.

Saturday night the Pack looked better than ever and won the game 35-29. Farnsworth, Griffin and Bankofier played their last games for Nevada and finished up in good order.

By their win over the Aggies the Wolves closed one of the most successful basketball seasons at Nevada in many a year.

JUNIOR VARSITY BASKETBALL

UNDER the tutelage of "Speed" Weaver, center of the 1931 University of Nevada varsity team, the Junior Varsity "A" and "B" basketball squads completed a highly successful season, winning championships in both divisions of the City Basketball League.

A wealth of ability was shown by both teams as they swept through the entire season undefeated in conference play. In the A division, the Junior Varsity team defeated the Reno Sporting Goods aggregation by a 56-24 score in the opening game of the tourney. Continuing their winning streak, they won from the Y. M. C. A., 46-24; the Chism Ice Cream factory five, 30-19; and the Northwestern Athletic Club, 49-12. At no time were they hard pressed.

Three of the men playing on the Junior Varsity A squad have earned letters in former years on Nevada varsity aggregations. Roy Salsbury, guard, and Jack Hill, forward, were on the varsity squad for about one-half of the 1932 basketball season, but reverted to the Junior Varsity in order to gain more playing experience; while John Fulmis, guard, a letter-man on the 1931 Nevada varsity, was ineligible for inter-collegiate competition this year. John Flournoy played a fast game at forward for the J. V.'s and may develop into a good varsity man next year. Other members of the team who competed throughout the season on the A squad are: Russell Elliot, Edgar Olson, Bud Beasley, Ralph Smith, Fred Morrison, and Bill Beemer.

The B squad also met with complete success, winning all of their games by large scores and developing steadily throughout the season. This quintet opened its schedule by trouncing the National Guard team by a 31-11 final tally. They followed this up with another victory, swamping the Piggly Wiggly hoopsters, 37-12. They defeated the Bell Telephone quintet, 15-7; the Union Ice Company, 26-12; and the Beta Kappa fraternity team, 28-14.

Playing for the B squad for the season were: Jack Dolan, Monty Boland, Duane Nelson, Fred Spirz, Harry Bonnefield, Walter Clark, Garry Callahan, Al O'Connell, Gene Salet, Ed Robertson, Dick McGuire, Lionel Jasper, Ed Tobler, and Floyd Smalley.

FRESHMAN BASKETBALL

Chet Scranton, Coach

Meeting most of the high school and club teams in the vicinity and taking one trip away from the home floor, the Freshman basketball squad went through a highly successful season. Coached by Chester M. Scranton, former star Nevada athlete, the yearlings showed a world of fight, and although their play was quite ragged at times, managed to come through with baskets at the crucial moments to win all but two of the games on the schedule.

Opening with a rush, the Freshmen defeated the Sparks High School quintet, 19-11, and from then on piled up a string of victories with scarcely a break in the record. The Junior Varsity, Stewart Indians, Northwestern Athletic Club, Yerington, Reno High School, Virginia City High School, and many lesser aggregations fell before the determined onslaught of the yearling quintet. Yerington High School gave them their closest game during this period, when they held the University team to a one-point victory, the final score being 16-15.

The Junior Varsity quintet proved to be the first to break into the Freshmen's string of victories. Although defeated by the Frosh earlier in the season, the J. V.'s came back to take them in their second encounter by the decisive score of 20-8. But to the small Gardnerville High School team goes the credit for spoiling the Freshman record for the 1932 season. This team ran up an overwhelming lead against the yearling second squad during the first two quarters of play, a lead which the first five was able to cut down considerably, but not completely overcome, in the final stanzas. The game ended with the Wolf Cubs on the small end of a 20-24 score. However, the Freshmen snapped back into form for the final engagement of the season, almost doubling the score which the Union Ice Company quintet was able to produce against them, winning 29-15.

1931 TRACK SEASON

GEORGE W. PHILBROOK, Coach

SALSBURY, Half and Mile

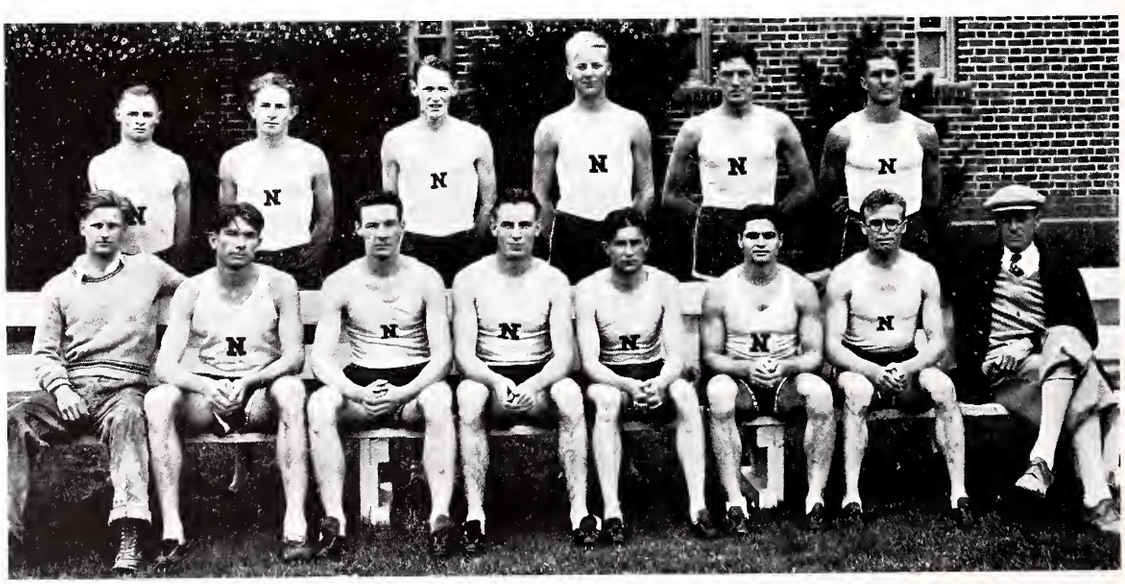

PRESENTING a team composed of unusually strong individual performers, but lacking the necessary all-around strength to defeat a well-balanced aggregation, Coach George Philbrook directed his 1931 track and field squad through a fairly successful season. The Wolf athletes took part in three meets, winning one and losing one of the two dual meets, and taking third place in the Far Western Conference meet in Sacramento.

SAN FRANCISCO UNIVERSITY

Nevada started the 1931 track season surprisingly well when they journeyed to San Francisco University's new stadium and romped away with the honors, taking ten first places and tying for another. The Wolf athletes turned in some unusual performances in the low altitude, running up an 84-47 score against the Dons. Double wins were registered by O'Brien, Walts, Salsbury and Lefebvre; while Nevada's relay team, composed of Reid, Wilson, Salsbury, and Walts, ran the mile relay in record time for the school. However, the time was not allowed because of unfavorable weather conditions.

A summary of the meet is as follows: 100-yard dash, won by Montague (SFU), Scott (N) second, Fitzgerald (SFU) third; time, 10 seconds. 220-yard dash, won by Walts (N), Scott (N) second, Montague (SFU) third; time 23 3-5 seconds. 440-yard dash, won by Walts (N), Breen (SFU) second, Quirola (SFU) third; time 52 3-5 seconds. 880-yard run, won by Salsbury (N), Reed (N) second, Smith (SFU) third; time, 2:05 4-5. Mile run, won by Salsbury (N), Jones (SFU) second, Ryan (SFU) third; time, 4:58. Two-mile run, won by Kenny (SFU), Seaborn (N) second, Seibold (N) third; time, 11:01 3-5. 120-yard high hurdles, won by Arthur (N), O'Bryan (N) second, Libby (SFU) third; time, 16 seconds.

One-mile relay, won by Nevada; time 3:26.

San Jose State

After their strong showing against San Francisco University, the Nevada track team was expected to ring up another victory against San Jose, but went down to a surprisingly decisive defeat, 87-44. The Spartans made five clean sweeps, took ten first places, and tied for another.

Far Western Conference

The Spartans of San Jose State clearly demonstrated their right to the Far Western Conference track crown for the second successive year when they amassed 64 points, including six first places, in the 1931 Conference Meet in Sacramento. The University of Nevada was barely nosed out by Fresno State for second place, the standing of the two teams not being decided until the relay. Fresno took 43½ points, and Nevada 40½. However, Nevada men broke three Conference records when Lefebvre boosted the broad jump and javelin marks, and O'Bryan established a new low time in the low hurdles.

1931 TRACK SEASON

Lefebvre, Nevada's one-man track team, took first place in the javelin with a record heave of 192 feet; first place in the broad jump, leaping 23 feet 8 inches to outdistance the established mark, and third place in the pole vault. Frank O'Bryan shattered all former Conference times in the low hurdles when he took the barriers in 24 seconds flat.

Fred Walts, the fastest 440 man ever to wear the Nevada colors, won his favorite event at the Conference meet in 49.8 seconds, while Captain Neil Scott came through for fourth place in the hundred and second in the 220-yard dash. Howie Arthur, high hurdler and high jumper, captured second place in both of the events in which he participated, while Roy Salsbury, veteran distance man, led his field to the tape in the mile, and Byron O'Hara tied for fourth in the pole vault. Thus were Nevada's 40½ points garnered. The Wolf athletes failed to place in the discus, shot put, 880-yard run, or two mile.

As is clearly evident from a perusal of the meet summaries, the losses incurred by the Nevada track and field team in 1931 were not due so much to the lack of ability on the part of the performers competing, but because the squad was not a well-balanced one, able to take the all-important second and third places to increase their point total.

INTER-FRATERNITY SPORTS

Unusual interest was taken by all of the groups on the Campus this year in the varied inter-fraternity sports program arranged by the physical education department and sponsored by the Inter-Fraternity Council. Competition was held in seven sports: cross-country, volley ball, horseshoes, basketball, baseball, handball, and tennis. Trophies were offered to the winners of each of these sports by the Inter-Fraternity Council, with only the members of the council being eligible to receive them. Consequently, in some cases, where the Lincoln Hall or Independent entrants came out victorious, the awards were given to the second or third place winners.

Handball

Sigma Phi Sigma, represented by Earl Handley and Tom Cashill, won the handball doubles tournament among Campus organizations by defeating the strong Phi Sigma Kappa team. This was a double-elimination competition. The Phi Sigs had previously defeated the Sigma Phi Sigma entrants, but in the finals were unable to duplicate their feat and lost two straight games, 23-21 and 21-10. At the time of this writing the Sigma Phi Sigma competitor was also leading in the singles tournament, but all of the matches had not been completed.

Tennis

The intra-mural tennis tournament resulted in a victory for the Independents in both the singles and doubles contests. The matches were run off in the form of a double-elimination tournament, in which the players were given two chances to be defeated before they were completely eliminated. Inclement weather this spring slowed the tournament considerably, but failed to dampen the interest taken in it by the participants. David Clark and Frank Sam alternated in the singles for the Independents and composed the doubles team which won both branches of the tournament. Bruce Gould, of the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity, was runner-up in the singles tourney; while the Sigma Alpha Epsilon team, composed of John Chism and Victor Clyde, took second place in the doubles. Meeting the University of San Francisco tennis aggregation on the home courts on April 23, the Nevada racquet swingers went down to a 5-4 defeat, winning two of the six singles matches and two of the three doubles. It was a cold, windy day, poor weather for tennis, and considering the fact that these were the first and only matches of the season for the Nevadans, the results were very satisfactory. At the beginning of the season it had been planned to send a tennis team to the Far Western Conference tournament, but because of several difficulties which arose, the trip was called off.

Dave Clark and Frank Sam

The results of the San Francisco University-Nevada matches are as follows: Clark (N) defeated Brady (SF); Sam (N) defeated Chase (SF); Harley (SF) defeated Elliott (N); Cummings (SF) defeated Gould (N); Odenthal (SF) defeated White (N); Morten (SF) defeated Chism (N); Sam and Clark (N) defeated Chase and Odenthal (SF); Cummings and Harley (SF) defeated Gould and White (N); and Elliott and Chism (N) defeated Morten and Brady (SF).

INTER-FRATERNITY SPORTS

Cross-Country

Finishing before a grandstand crowded with students, alumni, and townspeople, four teams crossed the finish line of the annual cross-country race on Homecoming Day, the Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity being the first to have three men complete the race, thereby winning the trophy.

Running the prescribed distance from Sparks, up East Fourth Street and University Avenue, the cinder men raced around the Mackay oval once and down the home stretch. Charles Linder, a Susanville, California, athlete, who ran the course to get into condition for the 1932 Olympic Games, was the first to break the tape. His time, 23 minutes 44 and 4-5 seconds, was not as good as the record established for the course by Fred Lohse, 1930 graduate. The first fraternity man to cross the finish line was Sam Arentz of Lambda Chi Alpha. He was two minutes behind Linder, and, taking a long, easy stride, did not seem to be even winded after finishing the race.

Three Lincoln Hall men, Albert D'Allessandro, Donald O'Dell, and Harold Westfall, composed the first team to finish, but were ineligible to receive the cup offered by the Inter-Fraternity Council. The Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity team was the first eligible group to complete the race and were awarded the cup. They were the defending champions, having taken the race in 1930. The members of their team were: Ben Sheehan, Fred Smalley, and Antoine Chavez. Alpha Tau Omega fraternity finished second, and Lambda Chi Alpha and Sigma Nu tied for third.

Twenty-five students entered this, the climax of the fall track training schedule. The race was also one of the outstanding features of the annual Homecoming Day celebration, being looked forward to with interest by the entire Campus.

1931 Baseball

Playing off the final game in the last week of school after the championship had been tied by a last-minute rally of the Sigma Alpha Epsilon team, the Phi Sigma Kappa ball tossers won the intra-mural 1931 baseball championship, chalking up a decisive 10-3 win over the S. A. E.'s in the deciding contest. Leading until the last week of the series, the Phi Sigs were defeated by the S. A. E. nine by a 1-0 score, when Vernon Hirst pitched a no-hit game that had the crowd standing on its toes throughout the contest. In the next game of the tournament the Sigma Alpha Epsilon men again pulled a surprise to defeat the Sigma Phi Sigmas and throw the league into a tie, and a play-off was necessitated. In the final game of the season, however, the Phi Sigs completely outplayed their opponents to win the cup. Star of the Phi Sigma Kappa outfit was Oscar Frietag, who played any position on the team well but did his best work in the pitcher's box. Fern Ambrose was the hitting ace of the team.

Floyd Smalley and Antoine Chavez

For the second place Sigma Alpha Epsilon aggregation, Hirst, Backer, Beckley and Flournoy did the heavy hitting.

The league standing from first to last at the close of the season was as follows: Phi Sigma Kappa, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Alpha Tau Omega, Sigma Phi Sigma, Beta Kappa, Lambda Chi Alpha, Independents, and Delta Sigma Lambda.

Members of the championship Phi Sigma Kappa team were: Louie Pastrell, Irvin Ayres, Henry Rampoldi, Lionel Grindell, Ted Brown, Eldridge Farnsworth, "Stub" Dubravac, "Shorty" Newell, Oscar Frietag, Frank Stewart, and Fern Ambrose.

INTER-FRATERNITY SPORTS

Horseshoes

Ringing the peg with a consistency that promises to make this intra-mural sport one of the most popular on the fall program, the Alpha Tau Omega horeshoe pitching team won the cup for the barnyard sport, defeating the Sigma Alpha Epsilon men, 21-12 and 21-16, in the final set. This tournament was introduced for the first time this year, and proved to be a big success. The court was laid out directly in front of the grandstand on Mackay Field, and was surrounded by enthusiasts throughout the tournament.

Members of the winning team were: Keith Lee, Al O'Connell, and Bob Bankofier. Vernon Hirst and Del Hewitt composed the second-place Sigma Alpha Epsilon team.

Basketball

Completing the season undefeated, the Alpha Tau Omega basketball team easily walked away with the intra-mural hoop championship and the silver cup given by the Inter-Fraternity Council last fall. No team was able to come within ten points of breaking the Tau's string of victories. The Sigma Nu hoop aces came the closest to offering competition for the men from the Alpha Tau Omega house when they held them to a 24-10 score. The champions piled up a total of 297 points for the season, an average of thirty-three points to a game.

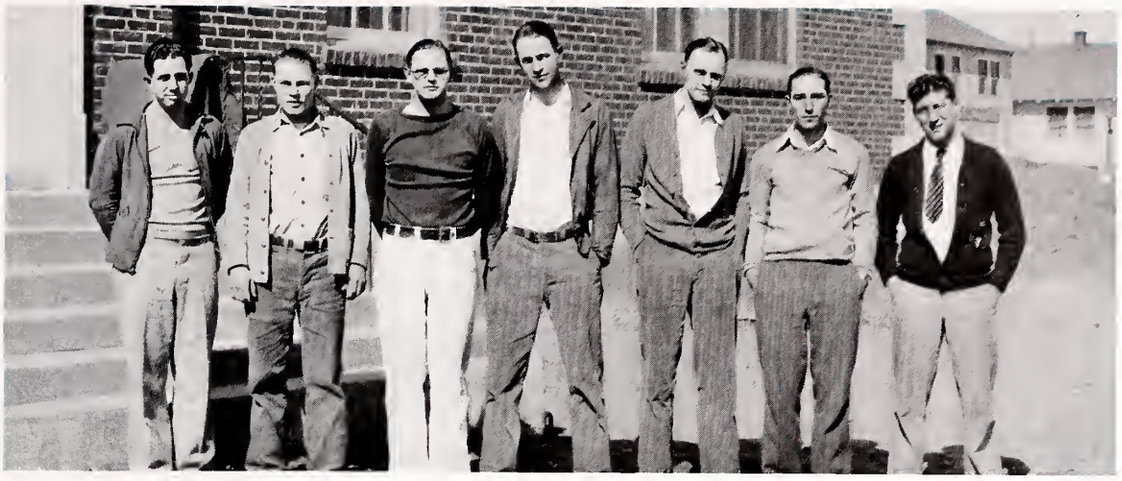

With a team composed of tall players, who had unusual ability in hitting the basket, the Taus were able to pass over the heads of most of their opponents and play an airtight defensive game. The men who composed this quintet later became star members of the varsity team that carried off the Far Western Conference championship this year. Members of the Alpha Tau Omega team were: Bob Bankofier, Roy Bankofier, Bruce Gould, Les Tomley, Keith Lee, Lloyd Guffrey, Harold Curran and Clayton Phillips.

The Sigma Nu and Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternities tied for second place in the basketball tourney, each losing two games. Sigma Nu lost to Lambda Chi Alpha and Alpha Tau Omega, while the S. A. E.'s lost to Sigma Nu and A. T. O.

The tournament was a round-robin affair, in which each team met every other team entered in the tournament. The basketball tournament had been discontinued in 1930, as it interfered with the varsity season, and with its reinstallation as a major intra-mural sport, it was run off early in the fall so that it would be completed before the varsity season got under way.

Volley Ball

Taking the jump on their opponents with a team composed of tall men, most of whom were over six feet in height, the Alpha Tau Omega fraternity won the intra-mural volley ball tournament, which was held during the fall semester, completing the season without a defeat.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Ruth Stewart, W. A. A. President

The Women's Athletic Association of the University of Nevada is one of the outstanding women's organizations on the Campus, the main purpose of the group being to cooperate with the women's physical education department in promoting interest in gymnastics and athletic activities. Up until 1919, when the organization became a member of the National Athletic Conference of American College Women, it was known as the Women's Athletic Society.

As a member of the A. C. A. C. W., the Nevada Association this year sent Ruth Stewart, present leader of the Association, and Mary Trudelle, president for 1933, to the sectional meeting of the organization, which was held in Los Angeles. At the meetings, problems confronting the various schools are discussed. The Association encourages the participation in sports and the teaching of the spirit of play, and arranges the sports program and sponsors all intra-mural competition. A well-rounded sports system has taken the place of inter-collegiate activities, making it possible for all women students interested to participate in their favorite games. Membership in the Association is based upon membership on a class team in any one of the various sports sponsored by W. A. A., and an average scholastic standing.

The governing power of the Association is vested in the Executive Committee, a group made up of the officers of the organization and the managers of the various sports. The committee acts as an advisory board, and arranges the sports calendar, and decides which sports to sponsor for the fall, winter, and spring seasons.

As President of the Women's Athletic Association for the past year, Ruth Stewart helped to sponsor a conference at the University for the purpose of interesting the high schools of the state in forming a state-wide Girls' Athletic Association. At the meeting, which was held in November, 1931, girls from Sparks, Reno, Yerington, and Winnemucca, were present. A tentative state constitution was drawn up and presented to the schools at the annual Play Day on April 30, 1932.

Members of the Executive Committee for the year 1931-1932 were: Helen Peterson, Genevieve Wolf, Mary Trudelle, Cora Henricksen, Della Renfro, Ida Rogers, Marthene Solares, Beatrice Bollschweiller, Helen Olmstead, Ruth Stewart, Dorothy Rose, Katherine Martin, Lena Perri, and Charlotte Pope.

WOMEN'S SPORTS

Mrs. Mae Simas, Women's Sports Coach

Mrs. Mae Simas, who is now instructor for physical education for women and director of women's athletics, was active in sports during her entire college life, and when she was graduated from Nevada in 1929, accepted the position which she now holds in the Physical Education Department. She is now the advisor and coach of the Women's Athletic Association, Gothic "N" advisor, faculty advisor to the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet, and a member of N. A. A. F.

It was through the efforts of Mrs. Simas, as President of the Women's Athletic Association during her senior year and later as a member of the Physical Education staff, that the W. A. A. lodge on the banks of Galena Creek was made possible. Contributions for the building of the lodge were received from friends of the Association, and in the fall of 1929 the project became a reality. Waa-Neva, as the lodge is called, is ideally situated for hiking and winter sports. During the past year, plans were formulated for the purchasing of sleeping bags in order that the women might spend week-ends at the lodge. It is here that the annual picnic which the Women's Athletic Association sponsors for the incoming Freshmen women is held.

The athletic activities of the Association include a varied sports program with both inter-class and intra-mural competition offered in some of the events.

Volley Ball

The volley ball tournaments are played off during the winter, before the Christmas vacation, with both inter-class and intra-mural winners being determined. In the intra-mural competition, a cup is awarded to the winners by the Pan-Hellenic Council. This year the sport was under the management of Della Renfro, and the final play-off found the Freshmen as winners of the class tournament, and the Independents as the winners of the mural games. Members of the winning class team were: Marjorie Sanborn, Ruby Hoskins, Elizabeth Frey, Dorothy Gordon, Ruby Bliss, Helene Stark, and Blanche Keegan. The Independent championship team was composed of: Ruby Hoskins, Marjorie Sanborn, Lena Del Grande, Dorothy Gordon, Elizabeth Frey, Genevieve Wolf, Miriam Clark, Ida Rogers, Blanche Keegan, and Ruby Bliss.

Archery

Archery, the sport of Robin Hood, is offered each spring, and this year, under the management of Dorothy Rose, proved more popular than in previous years, with approximately thirty women signed up for the activity. One of the outstanding features of the archery season is the exhibition match at the annual High School Play Day, when the women aim at queer paper animals and birds instead of the standard targets. Although archery is an outdoor sport, the weather during the past season was so unsettled that only indoor practice was attempted.

At the close of the season, a mythical archery varsity is chosen, membership on which is purely honorary, since no matches are undertaken. Those to receive the honor during the past season were Dorothy Rose, Margaret Kornmayer, Myra Sauer, and Dorothy Kallenbach.

Basketball

Basketball practice starts immediately after the Christmas vacation and continues into March, when the tournament is held. Intra-mural competition was not offered in this sport during the past year, the play being confined to an inter-class tournament. The Freshman team was again victorious and carried off the honors. The team was composed of Ruby Hoskins, Marjorie Sanborn, Agnes Gardner, Miriam Clark, Ruby Bliss, and Sarah Graves. The sport was under the management of Genevieve Wolf.

Hockey

For six weeks following the fall registration, field hockey is the favorite sport of the women athletes. The University possesses an excellent field and a large amount of equipment for this sport, and it is enjoyed as long as the weather conditions permit playing outside. During the past year, the management of this sport was in the hands of Lena Perri, who was a member of the varsity chosen at the end of the season. The tournament play was very exciting, and when it was all over, the Freshmen had added another sport to their list of championships. The varsity team chosen at the end of the tournament was composed of

RIFLE

Rifle is the only W. A. A. sport which carries inter-collegiate competition, this being done through correspondence with the opponents. The University of Nevada rifle squad is a member of the National Rifle Association, and shoots matches with other women's teams throughout the United States. Out of approximately twelve inter-collegiate matches, the Nevada women won five, and in the contests with the R. O. T. C. rifle team they won one and lost the second match by three points. The women are coached during the season by the members of the military department and those possessing the ten highest scores are presented with a Circle "N" by the heads of the department. The rifle team this past year included: Wanda Morrell, Dorothy Gordon, Elizabeth Frey, Myra Sauer, Mary Swett, Dorothy Kallenbach, Della Renfro, Grace Ammonette, Cora Henricksen, Ellen Eckman.

MINOR SPORTS

Other sports offered by the Women's Athletic Association include hiking, swimming, riding, and baseball, and each year an over-night trip to the top of Mount Rose, leaving from the Waa-Neva lodge. Plans are now being considered to organize an outing club for women who are interested in hiking, riding, rifle, fencing, and swimming. The management of the club will be under the military department, and membership will be based upon participation in at least three of the sports.

Although tumbling is more of a class project than an organized sport, is can be taken as an elective activity. During the past year, rapid progress was made, and the women were able to perform for the Spring Festival. According to present plans of the Association, if the present interest in tumbling continues, the activity will become a part of W. A. A. work.

Tennis is one of the more popular minor sports, and this year the cup awarded by the Pan-Hellenic Council was awarded to Marjorie Sanborn as a member of the Independents for first place in the singles contests.

RALLIES

Malcolm Blakely
A. S. U. N. Yell Leader

Considering the mediocrity of the 1931 football season, Nevada's three varsity yell leaders, Bill Blakely, George Davis, and Clifford Devine, and Phil Mann, song leader, received unusually good cooperation from the students, and were able to put over several successful rallies.

A mammoth coaches' rally opened the season, coming on the day that the coaching staff took the field to train the Wolf Pack. Speeches by Coach Philbrook, his staff of assistants, and several downtown supporters were greeted with enthusiasm by the students.

The second big rally of the year, the annual Freshman-Sophomore bonfire rally, was held the Thursday night of Homecoming Week. Despite the poor weather, a fairly large crowd of loyal students and townspeople assembled and listened to pep talks, and serpentined the field under the glare of the huge fire.

Numerous rallies were held at the depot, giving the Wolf team rousing send-offs. Others were held before the home games, and before the student body meetings.

In November, the mysterious Toxin rally was held. Speeches by Ed Reed, Bill Ligon, and Bill Kearney, aroused enthusiasm for the last football game of the season.

ARTEMISIA

Elbert Walker, Editor

William Gilmartin and Bruce Thompson
Assistant Editors

The twenty-ninth volume of the Artemisia marks a change in the style of the yearbook that differs from former editions both in size, and in the type of layouts. With the size increased to a nine-by-twelve book, and the new style of fraternity and sorority pages, the staff believes that some material progress has been made that will, in general, meet with approval.

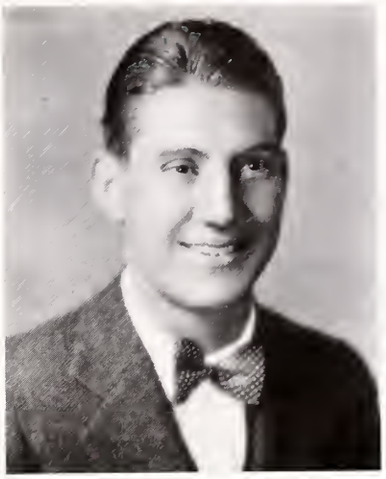

It is the purpose of the Artemisia to record the events of the college year and to serve as a reminder in years to come of the associations made with familiar faces and scenes. Explanatory matter of an interesting nature is also included, that the graduate and the student may more fully remember the events that took place, and recall his part in them. Unity in the book is secured by the choosing of a theme which, this year, is characterized by conservative modern art, and the using of heads to typify the various divisions and sub-divisions. A series of six etchings, two night scenes, and an air view of the Campus are presented as features of the book.

In the publication of any yearbook, the editor is always dependent upon not only his co-workers, but also upon people outside of the regular staff. This year has been no exception, and it is the desire of the editor to thank all those members of the student body and faculty who aided in any way in the compiling of the necessary material. Especial thanks are extended to Walter Clark for the short write-ups which appear on the sub-division pages; to John Mariani for the drawings for some of the sorority crests; and to Professor Harwood and Professor Hill for their constructive criticisms.

ARTEMISIA

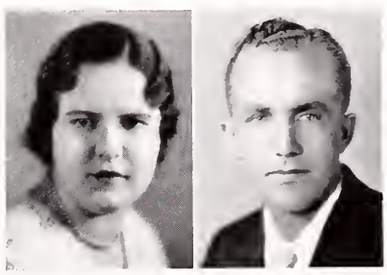

HAROLD TABER, Manager

THE publishing of the Artemisia involves the raising of money to cover expenditures of approximately $7,500. To do this, it is necessary to conduct an intensive advertising campaign for the raising of one-third of the amount, chiefly from local sources. The remainder of the income is derived from the student body, the Board of Regents, and organizations. With the passing of the rule whereby all students must pay their publications charges at registration time, the yearbook is assured of a definite sum with which to begin work. The money paid to the Artemisia by the Board of Regents is also definitely assured, $300 being appropriated for the purchase of books which are sent to the various high schools throughout the state. Copies are also secured by the Regents for the Honorary Board of Visitors and for the University Library.

This year, under the authorization of the Finance Control Committee, the new plan of advance collection from organizations was instituted, and was carried out very successfully. No opposition to the plan was encountered, and it will, in all probability, remains as an established business custom. A sum of a little more than $1,000 is contributed by fraternities, sororities, honoraries, and Campus groups toward the general fund.

A campaign for the collection of the advertising charges was made before the date of publication. The results enabled the staff to take advantage of several worthwhile discounts which were available, and which aided materially in the financial success of the yearbook.

SAGEBRUSH

JOSEPH JACKSON, Editor

KENNETH JOHNSON and HOWARD UMBER
Assistant Editors

THE UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA SAGEBRUSH, published each week by the student body, is the official newspaper organ of the college. The first edition of the paper was published thirty-nine years ago, and appeared semi-monthly, but since that time has grown both in size and frequency of publication.

The editor of the Sagebrush is chosen from among those who have had two or more years experience in newspaper work, and who, at the time of his appointment, has upperclass standing. Full control of the editorial policies of the paper and the appointment of the necessary assistants to carry out the work, is in the hands of the editor. This year, in addition to the large staff of reporters who were retained on the staff, the editor was ably assisted by Kenneth Johnson and Howard Umber, Assistant Editors; Margaret Ede, Women's Editor; Frances Armbruster, City Editor; Merle Atcheson, Sports Editor; and the Night Staff, composed of Neva Shaw, Katherine Wright, and Frances Smith. The secretarial work necessary for the paper was in the hands of Kathryn Wardleigh, Louise Gastanaga, Wanda Morrill, and Dixie Morrill.

Work on the Sagebrush presents diversified opportunity to anyone interested in newspaper activities, and by the means of a carefully organized staff, affords the best training available for such work. Exceptional ability and faithful service is recognized by the right to wear the Italic "N," official reward for members of both the editorial and business staffs.

SAGEBRUSH

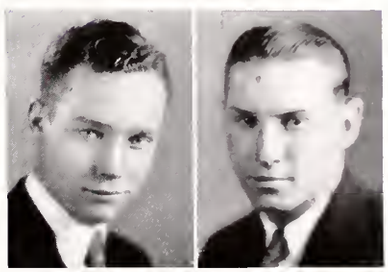

ROBERT MERRIMAN, Manager

THE MANAGEMENT OF THE SAGEBRUSH cooperates with the editor by supporting the paper and by distributing it. This year, the paper was run on a paying basis by Robert Merriman, Manager, and his staff of assistants, consisting of Charles Koerner and Lowell Russell, Junior Managers; and Arvin Boerlin, Circulation Manager. Marion Stone, who held the office of Assistant Business Manager, was largely responsible for the financial success of the publication, her experience and ability winning for her the coveted office which she attained.

Regular reports made to the Finance Control Committee assure the student body that the paper is on a sound financial basis. The Sagebrush, through careful planning of expenditures and an intensive advertising campaign conducted throughout the year, was able to build up a surplus in its accounts. The advertising is the life-blood of the publication, and includes not only that of a local nature, but also that of nation-wide scope.

The requirements necessary for any student to become editor of the paper, also apply to the managerial side.

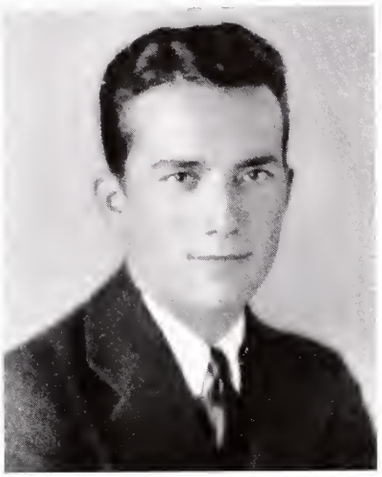

The University of Nevada Sagebrush is a member of the Pacific Intercollegiate Press Association, and this year has the honor of being the only publication in the association to have two of its members hold office for the ensuing year. Joseph Jackson, Editor, and Robert Merriman, Manager, were elected to hold the offices of President and Vice-President, respectively. In the discharge of their duties, the two officers will have complete charge of the annual convention of the association, which is to be held in Reno in the Fall of 1932.

DESERT WOLF

THE UNIVERSITY OF NEVADA DESERT WOLF is the official humor publication of the student body, and is issued four times each year. The magazine made its first appearance on Homecoming Day in 1923, when the student body recognized the special need for a publication devoted exclusively to short stories, timely articles, poetry, and art. Since that time, the Desert Wolf has developed steadily in size and quality, and at the present time is considered as one of the outstanding college humor magazines on the Pacific Coast.

The emphasis in the Wolf for the past year was placed upon art work and literary articles, rather than an extended joke and humor section. Every student on the Campus who had any talent at all along artistic or literary lines was urged to submit copy to the editor, and the result was that the publication lived up more to its original purpose. Stories of an historical nature, telling of some of the early incidents in the life of the University, and biographical sketches of some of the familiar figures about the Campus, made their appearance.

In the task of preparing each issue of the Wolf for the past year, John Mariani was ably assisted by Helen Montrose, literary editor, and Jack Myles and Kathryn McCormack, assistant editors. In addition, a well-organized staff of feature writers, short story writers, and artists, cooperated to make the 1931-1932 editions the most comprehensive and the most interesting ones that have ever appeared.

First row: Geraldine Bingamen, Jack Blakely, Ruth Brown, Blythe Bulmer.
Third row: Clara Galvin, Fern Hansen, Delbert Hewitt, Charlotte Hood, Raymond Hooper, Joseph Jackson, George Johnson.

DESERT WOLF

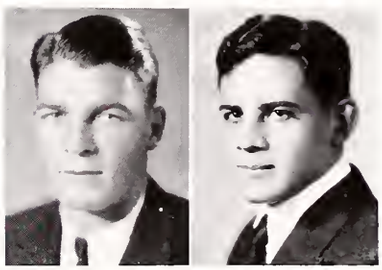

HUGH COOPER, Manager

UNIVERSITY humor magazines are recognized as one of the best fields for both local and national advertising. Because of the less formal style available in this type of publication, the advertiser is allowed more freedom in the selection of the type of appeal he wishes to make. In the Desert Wolf, sixty per cent of the advertisements which appear are those of the local merchants, while the remaining forty per cent is made up of that of a national character. Color pages are one of the largest sources of income to the magazine and these are of necessity limited to the use of the larger concerns.

One thousand copies of each issue of the Wolf are printed for distribution to the student body and throughout the state. Approximately sixty copies are reserved for exchanges with all but a few of the state universities and larger colleges in various parts of the country.

The Desert Wolf, through its system of financing, has always been able to turn over to the student body a small surplus, amounting to between $100 and $150.

This year has seen the use of a larger number of halftone cuts throughout the various issues. Pictures of some of the leading personalities on the Campus, as well as a number of scenes, have been combined in the editorial make-up. The covers, which have all been prepared by the editor, have been made up of four colors. The division of the color was prepared by John Mariani on separate drawings before the work was sent to the engravers, thereby reducing the cost of the plates to a great extent.

PUBLICITY BUREAU

Bernard Hartung, Graduate Manager

The Student News Service Bureau, which was placed under the supervision of the Graduate Manager's office at the beginning of the 1931-32 season, has succeeded in carrying out, to an appreciable degree, the publicity program that was started by the Publications Board in 1929. Stories covering general student activities are sent out, at regular intervals, to all of the State papers and to the leading Coast periodicals. Most of the news items were featured by cuts and mats obtained through McNitts Service. During the recent basketball season, over one hundred and fifty individual mats were distributed in the State and a like number were sent to the various college publications. As a future program, the News Bureau hopes to extend its service to include some of the larger eastern papers and the numerous collegiate sports magazines that are now appearing on the market.

Managerial System

The Associated Student Body is completing its second year under a system featured by departmental control, at the head of which is the Graduate Manager. He is the direct agent of the Student Finance Control Board, and must submit, at regular intervals, comprehensive financial reports on the various student activities. First in importance of the various departments to be included under this system are the various branches of athletics.

As in the larger Pacific Coast colleges, the general athletic policies are outlined by a faculty athletic committee which acts for the President of the University. The actual maintenance and carrying out of the athletic policies, however, is supervised by the Finance Control Board. Through this committee the Graduate Manager supervises the execution of the general athletic program.

During the past two years the Graduate Manager has acted in conjunction with the business managers of the three college publications, and has been able to keep an accurate check on their financial status. The lesser student activities, such as dramatics, debating, class functions, rifle team, women's athletics, and general women's activities, while allowed certain budgets at the beginning of each college year, must act through the manager's office.

Publicity Staff: Mary McCulloch, Anne O'Neill, Bernard Hartung, Elaine Hunter, Hazel Davis.

JOURNALISM CLASS

Professor Higginbotham, Instructor

One of the most popular courses with the students of journalism on the Nevada Campus is the English twenty-five and twenty-six class. Under the direction of Professor Higginbotham, an excellent basic course is given the students in newspaper work through actual experience in reporting.

The class is a laboratory course, and the copy written in it is used chiefly by the Sagebrush. This year it is estimated that more than half of the material appearing in the newspaper was written by the members of the Journalism Class, who may or may not be on the regular staff of the 'Brush. In addition to the material which is written for the student newspaper, copy is prepared for the downtown papers and for two press associations. A regular weekly column concerning University athletics is composed for the Associated Press, while Campus news, of interested throughout the state, is reported for the United Press. The class is operated just as is the editorial room of a real daily newspaper, with the instructor acting as the city editor, and the students as the reporters. At the beginning of the laboratory period, each person is given his assignment. After covering the beat and obtaining the necessary information, he returns to the class room and writes his story. A mythical deadline is established at four o'clock and no stories are accepted after this time.

A record of all the material written by each individual student is kept, and competition is keen for obtaining the greatest amount of copy by the end of the semester. Each week the best news story for that week written by one of the members of the class is selected by the instructor.

The class also studies the theory of newspaper work, and it is one of the few classes on the Campus in which a theoretical study is applied to actual practice as a part of the year's work.

Approximately thirty students were enrolled in the journalism department during the past year.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD

FRANCIS SMITH, Chairman

THE PUBLICATIONS BOARD is composed of the heads of the three publications, the Artemisia, the Desert Wolf, and the Sagebrush, and two representatives at large from the student body. The duties of the board are set forth in the A. S. U. N. constitution and consist of the electing of the new editors and managers at the close of the school year; the removing from office of anyone deemed incompetent; the filling of vacancies; the exercising of a supervisory control over the questions concerning policies of the various publications; and the issuing of the Homecoming Day programs.

The Board was first organized in 1924, and since that time has increased its activities to include the maintaining of harmony between the solicitors of advertising, and the downtown merchants. Cases of misrepresentation by people who claim to be working for one of the three Campus publications, are referred to the Board. The members of the Board for the past year were: Francis Smith, Chairman and Representative at Large from the Student Body; Nick Basta, Representative at Large from the Student Body; Elbert Walker, Editor of the Artemisia; Harold Taber, Manager of the Artemisia; John Mariani, Editor of the Desert Wolf; Hugh Cooper, Manager of the Desert Wolf; Joseph Jackson, Editor of the Sagebrush; and Robert Merriman, Manager of the Sagebrush.

STAGE

BERKELEY SQUARE

The first Campus dramatic production of the year, presented at the Granada Theatre on January 11 by Mask and Dagger, was "Berkeley Square." The play, which was written by John L. Balderston, deals with a fantastic and entirely preposterous theme concerning a young American architect, Peter Standish, who inherits an old English mansion, and, in residing there, discovers that he is able to walk back and forth through time, and can step into the part of an eighteenth century gentleman.

William Kelly Collonan, director of dramatics on the Campus, characterized the rôle of Standish in an almost professional manner. His ability to create the necessary atmosphere suited him almost perfectly to the part. The rôle of Helen Pettigrew, the girl whom Standish loved, was convincingly portrayed by Geraldine Harbert. The part of her sister was also well played by Edith McLaughlin, whose voice was well suited to the type.

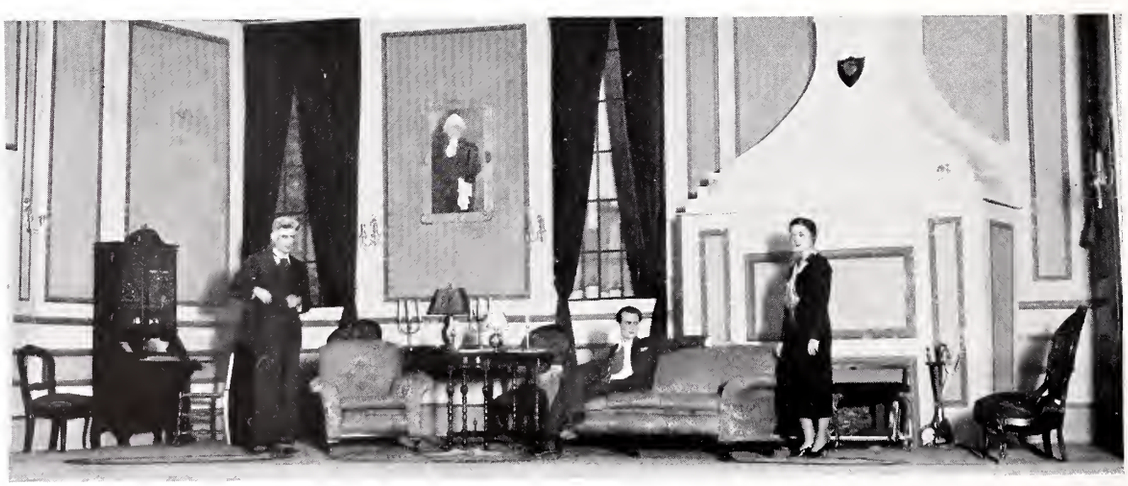

Outstanding ability was also brought out in the minor parts of the production to finish the performance in exceptional style. The members of the cast were: Elsie Kibbee, Clifford Devine, Edith McLaughlin, Anita Sourwine, John Thurston, Geraldine Harbert, Walter Clark, Blythe Bulmer, William Collonan, Helene Turner, Gordon Klein-Peter, Marion Stone, Helen PerLee, John Mariani, and John Bryant.

Wolves' Frolic

On October 16, the Campus staged perhaps the most outstanding Wolves' Frolic in recent years in connection with Homecoming. Abolishing the individual sorority and fraternity acts of previous years, the Frolic was presented as a whole along the Fanchon and Marco theme.

Tap dances, duets, quartets, songs, speeches, and skits, with the comedy theme dominating, were organized, to present as fine a show as has been seen in Reno. The chorus was perhaps the outstanding feature of the production, and its dancing skill and rhythm looked almost professional.

Scene from Berkeley Square

"JUNE MOON"

On March 9, Campus Players presented "June Moon," the second play of the year, at the Granada Theatre. The story centers around a small-time song writer who makes good in the big city despite the efforts of some crafty publishers and the wiles of a New York siren to bring about his downfall. Finally he tires of Broadway life and returns to his native town and boyhood sweetheart.

Herbert Peck, making his first appearance in campus dramatics, gave an effective interpretation of the "country boy who makes good." He becomes entangled in the mesh of a broken down composer, played by Dan Trevitt, who plans to use Peck's talent to his own advantage.

The part of Peck's first love was taken by Berry McAnally, whose ability to place herself in the mood of the part made the portrayal very effective. Dorothy Cooper, in the role of Trevitt's nagging wife, who is quite in sympathy with taking the country "hick" to the "cleaners," gave one of the finest performances of the evening.

Other members of the cast were: Donald Butler, Margaret Ede, Joe Jackson, Bernice Walker, Roy Majors, Louise Gastanaga, and Delbert States. The play was a humorous farce, written by Ring Lardner and George S. Kauffman, and directed by William Collonan.

One-Act Plays

Campus Players entertained the campus with three one-act plays on February 24. They were composed for the most part of inexperienced players and directors. "Raw Men," the first of the three plays, featured Phil Mann and Cliff Devine in a gruesome Alaskan story. Geraldine Harbert directed the play. 'The Turn in the Road," a story of the adventures of two amateur crooks, was composed of Joe Jackson, Caroline Hunt, John Thurston, Mary Eldridge, Delbert States, and Charles Nichols. Anita Sourwine was the director. Presenting a satire on marriage, Jean McIntyre, Louise Gastanaga, and Beatrice Figow made up the cast of "On Second Thought," directed by Parnell Balthasar.

DEBATE

Robert Griffin, Coach

Participating in eleven inter-collegiate contests during the 1932 season, the University of Nevada debate squad has gone through the most extensive and successful debate schedule yet attempted at the University. Five debates on subjects of imminent interest, dealing with social and economic problems, have been held on the home platform to date. Five other of the discussions on the schedule were held during the trip which two Nevada debaters took through the Northwest early in March. One debate remains on the schedule for April, at the time of this writing.

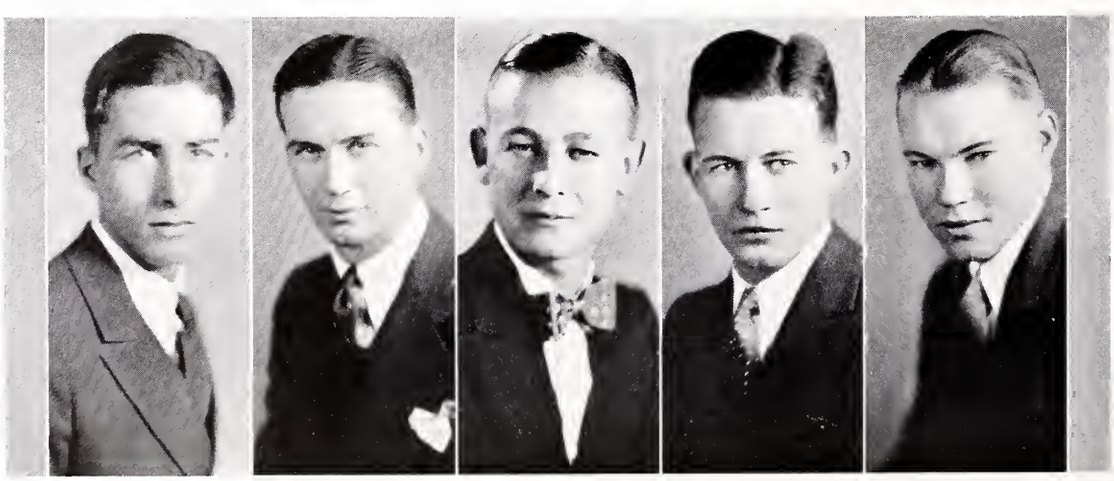

Opening the season on February 5, Vernon Loveridge and Bruce Thompson, two experienced speakers, met the traveling Marquette University team from Milwaukee, Wisconsin, on the question: Resolved, That the Tendency Toward Easy Divorce in America Should Be Condemned. The debate management at Nevada inaugurated a new policy for trial when they made a minimum admission charge for outsiders to the debate, admitting the students on their student body cards. A large audience gave the decision in favor of the visiting team.

Granville Fletcher and Dudley Nix represented Nevada in the ensuing debate with the University of Pittsburgh on the local platform on February 8, the question for discussion being: Resolved, That Congress Should Enact Legislation Providing for Centralized Control of Industry. No decision was rendered, although the Nevada team was considered to have had the best of the argument, upholding the affirmative side of the case.

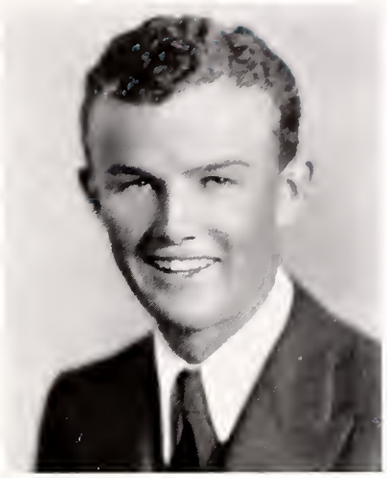

In a second no-decision debate, Vernon Loveridge and Granville Fletcher met a women's debate team from Oregon State College, the Nevada men defending the divorce laws of their home state. An unusually large crowd listened to the speeches, considering the fact that one debate had already been held on a similar question.

Leaving on February 26, Coach Robert Griffin, Vincent Casey, and Granville Fletcher toured Washington and Oregon, meeting five Pacific Coast colleges. Griffin reported an extremely successful trip on his return, stating that he was justifiably proud of the showing the Nevada men had made. The first debate was held at Reed College in Portland on the easy divorce question. The Nevada men debated, in turn, teams from the University of Washington, Willamette University, and the University of Oregon, upholding the divorce laws of Nevada; and completed their schedule for the trip at Oregon State College.

Bruce Thompson, Manager

The final debate was extemporaneous for all the speakers, the subject being chosen the morning of the discussion. Only two of the debates on the schedule were decision contests, Nevada losing to the University of Washington, and winning an overwhelming audience decision at the University of Oregon.

No further debates had been scheduled for March, but the time was well filled in preparation for three inter-collegiate debates to be held early in April.

On April 7, Vincent Casey and Keith Lee met a team from the University of Southern California. This was the outstanding debate of the season and was held at the Washoe County building. The debate was on the question: Resolved, That the Democratic Party Should Be Returned to Power in 1932.

The following evening Daniel Trevitt and Granville Fletcher lost a decision to the College of Pacific on the question of centralized control of industry. The final debate of the season is scheduled for April 15, at which time a Nevada team will meet speakers from Fresno State College.

Eleven men participated in debate during the 1932 season, and, although some of them did not get the opportunity to take part in an inter-collegiate discussion, Nevada will have a fine nucleus around which to form a team next year. But two of the members of the squad are graduating.

In addition to activities in actual debating, six of the Campus orators took part in the Washington oratorical contest which was held at the University as a part of the nation-wide Washington bi-centennial celebration. Bernard Mergen, of Sparks, with his oration, "The Spirit of Washington," won first place. Elwin Jeffers, of Reno, took second prize. As a result of his victory, Mergen was given a trip to Los Angeles, where he represented Nevada in the district eliminations of the contest. Both men showed promise of developing into capable speakers for next year's squad.

Taken as a whole, the 1932 debate season may be characterized as the most successful to be held at Nevada in years. More interest was shown by the students, and larger audiences were obtained for the discussions.

MEN'S GLEE CLUB

Al Bernes, President

PARTICIPATING in numerous concerts and activities during the past year, the Men's Glee Club has gone through a very full season. During the past two semesters, concerts were given in Reno, Fallon, Carson City, and Virginia City. Several broadcasts were given over the local radio station, and in conjunction with the Women's Glee Club and the Community Orchestra, a concert was given at the Century Club, where excerpts from the opera "Carmen," were presented. The club took an active part in the auto show and the Spring opening given by the business houses of Reno.

Much of the time during the last part of the Spring semester was spent in preparation for the concert to be given in San Francisco by the Northern California and Nevada district of the Associated Glee Clubs of America, but due to financial difficulties, the concert for this year has been postponed. Definite plans are being made for a contest to be held in 1933, in which the glee clubs from Stanford, California, California Agricultural School, San Francisco University, and Nevada, will compete.

The Glee Club Quartette, the most active quartette that has ever been organized on the Campus, appeared at many social functions, and sang for the Mackay Day luncheon and dance. They also took an active part in the Shrine Minstrel Show, along with the other members of the Glee Club. The show was presented twice in Reno, and once in Fallon.

Many comments have been made on the success of the music department during the past year, and especially of the Men's Glee Club, which has taken part in more concerts and activities than during any previous year.

WOMEN'S GLEE CLUB

Helen Steinmiller, President

The past year has been one of the most active for the musical department in recent years. This was true in particular of the Women's Glee Club, which has made numerous appearances at many social affairs and entertainments. A great deal more interest was shown among the women of the Campus in singing and in music, and this spirit aided greatly in organizing a very successful group.

The first event of the year for the women singers took place when they journeyed to Virginia City, and, in connection with the Men's Glee Club, entertained the people of the Comstock city in a very delightful musical recital. Several solos and quartette numbers featured the evening.

The second affair for the Glee Club was their entertainment for the Twentieth Century Club. The presentation was well received by the members of the club, who complimented the women on their musical ability. Following this recital, the members of the club presented a broadcast over radio station KOH.

Other events for the Women's Glee Club included a concert at the local Episcopal Church, participation in the downtown Fashion Show as part of Reno's Spring Opening, the annual Glee Club Jamboree, which was held at the Washoe County Library building, and the Y. W. C. A. Pageant.

Members of the club during the past year were: Blythe Bulmer, Esther Warner, Melva Fowler, Marjorie Fay, Margaret Richards, Lucille Stone, Irma Fawcett, Mary Ann Peck, and Zina Harrison, altos; Margaret Fuller, Pearl Lunsford, Beatrice Cobb, Miriam Clark, Edna Haave, Martha Scrugham, Florence Diskin, Mary Adeline Thompson, Ruth Jones, Leone Clark, Miriam Fischer, Elizabeth Cazier, Camille Cerrita, Ellen Eckman, Alice Gottschalk, Patricia Harrison, Dorothy Hersey, and Ruth Williams, sopranos. Helen Steinmiller was the accompanist.

Helen Steinmiller and Blythe Bulmer held the offices of President and Secretary-Treasurer, respectively.

Professor Theodore Post has brought the organization of the Women's Glee Club up to a high standard and deserves a great deal of credit for the progress of the group during the past year.

COMMUNITY ORCHESTRA

Theodore Post, Director

The University-Community Orchestra was organized five years ago under the direction of Theodore Post, newly installed professor of music at the University, and since that time has taken an active part in community events and college theatricals. The orchestra furnishes an opportunity for both University students and townspeople, who are interested in good music, to study orchestral music and to play some instrument in special programs.

The program for the orchestra this year included concerts in Sparks, Virginia City, and Carson City, and an annual Spring concert at the Century Club, in Reno, on April 14. This year the Spring concert featured the l'Arlessienne Suite by Bizet and several selections from the opera "Carmen." The orchestra was assisted in the event by both the Men's and Women's Glee Clubs.

The membership of the University-Community Orchestra is made up of thirty University students, and men and women from both Sparks and Reno. The personnel for this year included: Ethel Leonard, Leota Maestretti, Anna Blundell, Louise Zimmer, Murray English, Helen Gould, Clara Beemer, Lloyd Leonard, Alvin Jacobs, Lois Brooks, Joyce Cooper, and Margaret Richards, violins; Eloise Stanton and Mrs. L. A. Sweat, violas; Mr. L. A. Sweat, Mr. C. B. Hanson and Dr. Mildred Johnson, cellos; Rev. F. D. Graves and Mrs. Verdie Stanton, flutes; J. D. Bruce, clarinet; Mrs. F. L. Morrill and Lawrence Mathews, horns; Professor Merle Deming and Robert Palmer, trumpets; Dr. S. T. Spann and Donald Butler, trombones; Walter Mattson, baritone saxophone; Mr. Cam Mottino and W. J. Little, drums; and Mrs. Dorothy B. Post, piano.

The director, Mr. Post, is a graduate of Washburn College and of the New England Conservatory of Music, and also received a Master of Arts degree from Harvard University. For three years he was in charge of the voice department at Washburn College, later a teacher of musical theory and voice at Frinnell College and Smith College, and has been conductor of several church choirs and musical organizations. He is also a tenor soloist of marked ability.

Alvin Jacobs, Drum Major

One of the most interesting and worthwhile extra-curricula activities on the Campus is the University Band. Membership in the organization is based upon a student's ability to read music and to play some instrument. R. O. T. C. credit is given to those students who register for band instead of military work, and one credit is given to all other members.

The band is a very active organization and plays for all home football and basketball games, and participates in the Homecoming and Admission Day parades. As a special feature this year at the Homecoming game, the University Band played in a massed program with the Reno High School, Sparks High School, and two Shrine bands.

Because the organization is given little financial help from the Student Body, its instruments are lacking in number and quality, and its activities are considerably restricted. Five years ago, however, the University helped the band members to buy the uniforms that they use at the present time, and the band is now able to make a colorful showing wherever they play.

The personnel of the band for the past year included: Robert Palmer, Chester Hart, Darrell Berry, Thomas Trythal, George Lohse, Leonard Voorhees, and Paul Hartman, trumpeters; Fred Dunn, Vernon Mills, Jack Williams, Kistler Rivers, Nolan Gault, Hugh Rossolo, Edward Parmenter, Reed St. Clair, and Grant Rice, clarinets; Richard Bagley, Murray English, Fred Barkow, and James Atkinson, alto players; Robert Liddell, James Wallace, and Gerry Brummond, saxophonists; Garry Callahan, Kenneth Elges, George Mann, and Gordon Carmen, drums; Duane Nelson, Paul Rain, O. W. Anderson, and Donald Butler, trombones; Al Morey and Victor Maxwell, bass players; Professor Deming and Russell Knapp, baritone players; Walter Mattson, baritone saxophonist; Alvin Jacobs, drum major; and Professor Theodore Post, director.

The officers for the year were: Kenneth Elges, President; Alvin Jacobs, Secretary, and Kistler Rivers, Treasurer.

First row: Little, Carmen, Jacobs, Elges.
Middle row: Rivers, Mills, Dunn, Rice, Williams, St. Clair, Rossolo, Liddell, Wallace, Brummond, Palmer, C. Hart, Lohse, Bagley, D. Hart.
Top row: Parmenter, Gault, Barkow, Atkinson, Nelson, Deming, Maxwell, Post, Mattson, Hartman, Berry, Trythall, Knapp.

ORGANIZATIONS

Fraternities, sororities, honoraries, and groups—social and otherwise. Rushing; pledging; initiation; and the student becomes a member of a house. If he serves the campus well, he becomes a member of a campus group or honorary. Another new chapter in the college year.

SORORITIES

Delta Delta Delta, international sorority, was founded at Boston University in 1888 and at the present time has 83 chapters, three of which are in Canada. In addition to a well centralized government and a splendid business organization, the sorority is known for its system of endowments. Four national endowment funds are maintained for the purpose of helping women finish college and furnishing scholarships for post-graduate study at home and abroad.

Theta Epsilon, the first local sorority to be founded on the Nevada Campus, was formed in 1900 by eleven women. In 1913 the group became Theta Theta chapter of Delta Delta Delta, being the first national sorority to be established at Nevada. Seven years ago Theta Theta chapter bought their present home, and became the first sorority house owners at Nevada. In addition to the active chapter, there is a strong local Alliance and Mother's Club.

Pi Beta Phi was founded at Monmouth College, April 28, 1867, by Libbie Brook, Clara Brownlee, Ada Bruen, Nancy Black, Jennie Horne, Inez Smith, Margaret Campbell, Fannie Whitenack, Rosetta Moore, Jennie Nicol, and Fannie Thompson. It was the first organization of college women established as a national college fraternity. The organization was originally called the I. C. Sorosis, but adopted its present Greek name in 1888. Supreme power is vested in the biennial conventions. Administration is carried on by a grand council of five members. There are ten provinces, each with a president.

The Nevada Alpha chapter of Pi Beta Phi was formerly known on the Campus as Delta Rho, which was established in 1900. After petitioning to the national organization of Pi Beta Phi, a charter was granted to the local Delta Rho, and in November, 1915, Mrs. Ford J. Allen, National Vice-President, presided at the installation ceremonies. At that time, eighteen active members and ten alumnæ members were initiated into the second national sorority on the Nevada Campus.

The founding of Beta Sigma Omicron took place at the University of Missouri in 1888, by Eulalie Hackaday, Maude Haines, and Katherine Turner. Expansion at first was limited to the Southern colleges, but in 1925 a policy of expansion to include all class "A" universities was adopted. In 1930, the sorority was admitted to associate membership in the National Pan-Hellenic Council, and will within four years become a full voting member of that body.

The nationalization of Alpha Delta Theta was announced in November, 1921, and the first initiation was held in February, 1922. An expansion policy was formulated, and during the ten years of its existence, Alpha Delta Theta has attained a leading place among sororities. It is rated as one of the "Big Ten" by Alpha Phi and has been admitted to senior membership in the National Pan-Hellenic Council.

PAN-HELLENIC COUNCIL

MELVA FOWLER, President

The Pan-Hellenic Council is an organization governing the six sororities on the Nevada Campus. It is composed of two delegates from each house, and has full control over all matters pertaining to rushing and pledging. The local council is a member of the national organization, from which it obtains its authority to penalize those sororities which break any of the rules as stated in the Pan-Hellenic rushing regulations. The social affairs of the council are limited to a dance, which is given every fall semester, and a tea for the new women students on the Campus.

Members for the past year have been: Delta Delta Delta, Mary Baird and Enid Harris; Pi Beta Phi, Parnell Balthasar and Florence Lehmkuhl; Gamma Phi Beta, May Vuich and Marion Stone; Kappa Alpha Theta, Beatrice Patterson and Margaret Fuller; Beta Sigma Omicron, Melva Fowler and Mildred Goble; and Alpha Delta Theta, Leonora Gardella and Lois Barber.

On January 14, 1921, fifty members of the local fraternity, Phi Delta Tau, were initiated into Alpha Tau Omega. Three of the men who founded Phi Delta Tau—Adelbert Pflaging, Lehman Ferris, and Leslie Johnson—in 1912, were present at the initiation ceremonies. Lewis Williams, chief of Province Nine, conducted the initiation.

Sigma Phi Sigma was founded at the University of Pennsylvania, April 13, 1908, by Brice Hayden Long, Percy H. Wood, and Guy Park Needham. Government is vested in a grand chapter, composed of ten grand officers and one delegate from each active and alumni chapter. This body holds biennial conventions known as grand assemblies. Initiation is partially governed by national scholarship laws. Expansion is directed toward selected groups in institutions of recognized standing.

In April of 1921, seven men from Lincoln Hall met and formed the club known as Links and Shield, with the idea of petitioning a fraternity for membership. All preparations for the active work of the group were made, so that in the fall semester the organization was perfected. A petition was drawn up and submitted to Sigma Phi Sigma, and eleven months after the first meeting of the group, a charter was granted.

Delta Sigma Lambda, the first college fraternity composed entirely of members of the Order of De Molay, was founded at the University of California, September 9, 1921, by Donald McLean, Joseph Fairchild, H. P. Meyer, Joshua Eppinger, Edgar Bissinger, and Albert Axelrod. A national organization was provided when a group at the University of Nevada heard of the rapid progress of the society; and before the third anniversary of the original fraternity the Nevada group was admitted. Delta Sigma Lambda has no official relation with the Masonic order. The fraternity is strictly social. There are 12 active chapters and a total membership of 850.

In September, 1922, the local fraternity, Triune, was founded at the University of Nevada. The charter members of the organization were: Charles Poppe, Ira Herbert, Raymond Holtzman, Tom Welsh, George Gosline, and Jesse Smith. The faculty members were: S. C. Dinsmore and Stanley Palmer. Two months later, on November 11, 1922, because of the splendid organization that had been established by Triune, it was admitted as the third chapter of Delta Sigma Lambda.

Before becoming a national fraternity, the local chapter of Beta Kappa, known on the Campus as Phi Gamma, was an agricultural fraternity. The local was organized on December 4, 1922, and included in its membership most of the faculty of the agricultural department as well as a number of the agricultural students. However, the group split into two factions, one of which withdrew from the fraternity all together. The remaining members carried on the organization and received their charter from Beta Kappa, national fraternity.

Kappa Lambda was organized in 1921 as a local fraternity and remained local because of certain advantages until 1928, when the members decided that the advantages of a national organization outweighed those of a local. INTER-FRATERNITY COUNCIL

IRVIN AYER, President

The Inter-Fraternity Council is an organization composed of delegates from the eight fraternities on the Campus. It is the purpose of the Council to regulate the pledging and rushing of the men students at the University, and to enforce the rules in regard to the giving of favors and corsages at dances by a system of fines. The Council also has full control over all inter-fraternity sports and provides cups and awards for the winners in the various sports.

The present constitution of the Council was adopted in 1931, and serves the purposes for which it was intended in a very efficient manner. All differences of opinion have been settled in a satisfactory way, and the organization is at the present time stronger than it has been in the past.

In the spring of 1932, the Stray Greeks, an organization of those men from other universities belonging to houses which do not maintain a chapter on the Nevada Campus, were admitted to membership in the Council.

The members for the year 1931-1932 were: Sigma Nu, William Beemer and Malcolm Blakely; Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Norman Blundell and John Winters; Phi Sigma Kappa, Irvin Ayer; Alpha Tau Omega, Philip Daver and John Griffin; Sigma Phi Sigma, Oscar Bryan and Harold Sanford; Delta Sigma Lambda, Joseph Jackson and Dwight Leavitt; Beta Kappa, Mason Meyers and Edwin Force; Lambda Chi Alpha, Elmer Perry.

HONORARIES

The laurel no longer bends to the broad brow, but the magnificent austerity of men of deeds and dreams has known no falling off.
He walks into tomorrow grandly.

COFFIN AND KEYS

COFFIN AND KEYS, an upperclassmen's honorary society, was founded at the University of Nevada in 1916. The purpose of the organization is the securing and rendering efficient the complete cooperation of all students by combining in organized form the men of the University who are considered leaders in student life and activity.

Members during the past year were: Gregory Adams, Irvin Ayer, Malcolm Blakely, Edwin Cantlon, John Griffin, Raymond Hackett, Joseph Jackson, Edgar Leonard, Theodore Overton, Francis Smith, Fred Wilson. The newly elected members were: Eldridge Farnsworth, Bruce Thompson, John White, Gaile Parsons, Howard Umber, John Mariani, William Beemer, Raleigh Watson, Albert Seeliger, Elbert Walker, John Chism.

Officers for the first semester were: Fred Wilson, President; Malcolm Blakely, Secretary, and Irvin Ayer, Treasurer. Officers for the second semester were: Francis Smith, President; Irvin Ayer, Secretary, and John Griffin, Treasurer.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

The National Society of Scabbard and Blade is an honorary military fraternity with chapters in 46 states. The organization was founded at the University of Wisconsin in 1904-1905, and at the present time has 75 active companies. Membership is based upon proficiency in military science, academic subjects, and is selective.

The local chapter, which was installed in 1929, is composed of the following members: Cadet Captains, W. Harland Stuart and Walter E. Mitchell; Cadet First Lieutenants, Robert Merriman, Jack Lindly, Adelbert States, Edward Usnick, and Frederick Nelson; Cadet Second Lieutenants, Fred Needham, Arthur Chloupek, Robert Anderson, George Davis, Robert Horschman, Wayne Van Voorhis, and Paul Nichols. The honorary and associate members are Colonel Robert Brambila, Colonel John Ryan, Lieutenant Wilcox, Harvey Foulkes, President Walter Clark, J. E. Martie, E. G. Sutherland, and Keith Scott.

The officers for the past year were: Captain, Cadet Arvin Boerlin; First Lieutenant, Cadet Carl Elges; Second Lieutenant, Cadet Orvis Reil; First Sergeant, Cadet Calvin Dodsen; Liaison Officer, Lieutenant Grant Hustis.

GOTHIC "N"

GOTHIC "N" corresponds to the men's Block "N" Society, and is the highest honor the University confers upon women for participation in athletics. It is representative of scholarship, service to the Women's Athletic Association, and to the University; good sportsmanship, and athletic ability. In 1913, the Women's "N" Society was formed to promote interest in athletics and to extend the number of sport activities. Election to the society was based upon participation in the basketball games, which were held with Stanford and California.

During the World War the society was inactive, and in 1919 it was reorganized and became known as the Gothic "N" Society. Because of the abolishment of inter-collegiate competition, the basis for membership was changed so that sportsmanship and proficiency in some major sport are the requirements upon which elections are made.

The members of the society for the past year were: Dorothy Ernst, Juanita Johnson, Dorothy Kallenbach, Marion Nichols, Helen Peterson, Della Renfro, and Mary Trudelle. The newly elected members were: Lydia Grandi, Margaret Kornmayer, Charlotte Pope, Marthine Solares, and Genevieve Wolfe.

The officers for both semesters were: Dorothy Ernst, President; Della Renfro, Vice-President, and Juanita Johnson, Secretary-Treasurer.

Nichols Ernst Peterson Johnson Renfro Kallanbach Trudelle

CAP AND SCROLL

CAP AND SCROLL is that organization which elects annually to membership those upperclass women who have proven themselves leaders on the Campus in activities, scholarship, service, and citizenship. It is a purely honorary society. Approximately seven women are elected at the close of every college year, from the incoming and outgoing senior women. A girl must have been a leader in one field, active in another field, and have a scholastic average of 2.3. Dr. Church is the patron of the organization.

Members for the past year were: Frances Armbruster, Mary Baird, Margaret Ede, Dorothy Ernst, Juanita Johnson, Helen Montrose, and Marian Nichols.

The officers were: Juanita Johnson, President; Marian Nichols, Secretary-Treasurer, and Mary Baird, Marshal.

CHI DELTA PHI

Chi Delta Phi, the only national literary society organized for women, was installed on the Nevada Campus on April 25, 1931. The first chapter of the society was established on the Campus of the University of Tennessee in 1919. The prime mover in the forming of the organization was Charles R. Morse. Mr. Morse, after finding that no literary sorority of the type that corresponded to the fraternity Sigma Upsilon existed, interested Nelle Bardin in the forming of Chi Delta Phi with a view to nationalization. The first chapter was established in 1919, and at present there are twenty-nine active chapters and two alumnæ chapters. The purpose of the sorority is to form bodies of representative women who, by their influence and their literary interests, shall uphold the highest ideals of liberal education.

The local chapter was formerly known as Delta Alpha Epsilon, an English honor society. Requirements for membership include a major in English, and an average of 2.0 for the three semesters previous to pledging. Those who have displayed unusual literary ability, although not majoring in English, are also admitted to the organization.

Members of Chi Delta Phi for the past year have been: Frances Armbruster, Ruth Bixby, Blythe Bulmer, Mildred DeWitt, Margaret Ede, Margaret Fuller, Fredrica Lippman, Isabel Matley, Berry McAnally, Helen Montrose, Helen Olmstead, Marjorie Myles, Helen Peterson, Elsie Seaborn, Mary Ruth Seamon, Helen Steinmiller, Marion Stone, Mary Trudelle, Helene Turner, and Inez Walker. The newly elected members for the spring semester were: Dorothy Pope, Charlotte Pope, Constance Philips, Florence Diskin, Mary Sourwine, Dorothy Rose, Ina Johnson, Dortha Robertson, Millicent Johnson, Kathryn Hansen, and Lois Hutchinson.

The officers for the past year were: Helen Montrose, President; Mary Ruth Seamon, Vice-President; Elsie Seaborn, Secretary, and Marjorie Myles, Treasurer.

BLUE KEY

BLUE KEY grew out of the organization known as the "Buck Grabbers," and received its charter to the national fraternity in 1926. The Buck Grabbers was an organization started by Jack Morse, a member of the faculty in the business department, who was an enthusiastic Nevada backer and who had the ability to get men interested in working for the University. Membership was at first limited to men in the business department, but later spread out to include those people who were willing to work and who would "grab the buck" instead of "passing it."

After three years of active work, the "Buck Grabbers" petitioned Blue Key, a national honorary undergraduate service fraternity, and upon receiving a charter, became one of the most active organizations on the Campus. The activities of Blue Key at the present time consist of the giving of the Wolves' Frolic, the proceeds from which, amounting to approximately one thousand dollars, are turned over to the student body for the athletic fund; the selling of season tickets for football; and the parking of cars and ushering at football games. Plans are now being worked out whereby Blue Key will give a large get-together dance at the beginning of each semester, and a mammoth rally at the conclusion of each major sport season.

The members during the year 1932 were: George Adamson, Irvin Ayer, Nick Basta, Malcolm Blakely, Oscar Bryan, Philip Daver, Albert Davis, George Davis, Eldridge Farnsworth, Ray Hackett, Joseph Jackson, Bennett Johnson, Kenneth Johnson, Dwight Leavitt, Robert Merriman, Albert Randolph, Francis Smith, Delbert States, Dan Trevitt, Fred Trevitt, Bruce Thompson, Elbert Walker, Fred Weeks, Fred Wilson, and John Winters. Faculty members were: William Blackler, Kelly Collonan, Bernard Hartung, and Paul Harwood. The newly elected members of the organization were: Harlan Stuart, Jack Hill, William Beemer, Lawrence Kearny, Robert Harrison, Wyman Evans, George Sanford, Jesse Christensen, Jack Myles, Alonzo Priest, John Mariani, Mathew Mohorovich, Gordon Kleinpeter, Howard Umber, Wayne Van Voorhis, Sam Arentz, and Philip DeLongchamps.

Officers for the first semester were: Albert Davis, President; Fred Trevitt, Vice-President; Irvin Ayer, Secretary, and Fred Weeks, Treasurer. Those holding office during the second semester were: Bruce Thompson, President; Elbert Walker, Vice-President; Malcolm Blakely, Secretary, and Nick Basta, Treasurer.

OMEGA MU IOTA

The history of Omega Mu Iota dates back to 1922, when the Pre-Medical Club was organized as an honorary society for those students with high scholastic standing studying in the subjects related to medicine. The founders of the original club were Arden Kimel, who at the present time is a physician, and LeRoy Fathergell, who is now an instructor at the Harvard Medical School.

The Greek letter name was adopted in 1927, and the pin, which is of plain gold with the letters Mu and Iota forming the base, and with the Omega superimposed, was chosen.

Dr. Peter Frandsen has been the inspiration and the guiding light of the society since its founding. Due to his interest and work in behalf of the organization, the society has been one of the most active campus honoraries.

Each year men prominent in their particular field are selected as speakers, and as a result the members have an opportunity to gain first-hand information from prominent doctors, chemists, and former students. In addition, each student lectures upon some subject which is of particular interest to him and which he feels will be of some benefit to the group. Each senior student is given some project which he works out during the course of the school year.

Members for the year 1931-1932 were: Marcella Barclay, Fred Barkow, Edwin Cantlon, Gorden Carmen, Elizabeth Carpenter, Dave Clark, Hugh Cooper, Kenneth Elges, Fred Foster, Alvin Jacobs, Arvid Johnson, Anna Belle Langberg, Walter Mitchell, John Molini, Bruce Moore, Leo Nannini, Duane Nelson, Madeline O'Connell, Henry Rampoldi, Ruth Stewart, Mary Tucker, Thomas Trythall, Jack Wright. The newly elected members were: Ed Bath, Jack Belz, Dan Bledsoe, Angelina DeNevi, C. Giovanetti, Robert Hansen, Charles Joseph, Ernest Mack, Kenneth Maclean, Reed St. Clair, Leslie Tomley.

Officers for the year were: Alvin Jacobs, President; Edwin Cantlon, Vice-President, and Elizabeth Carpenter, Secretary-Treasurer.

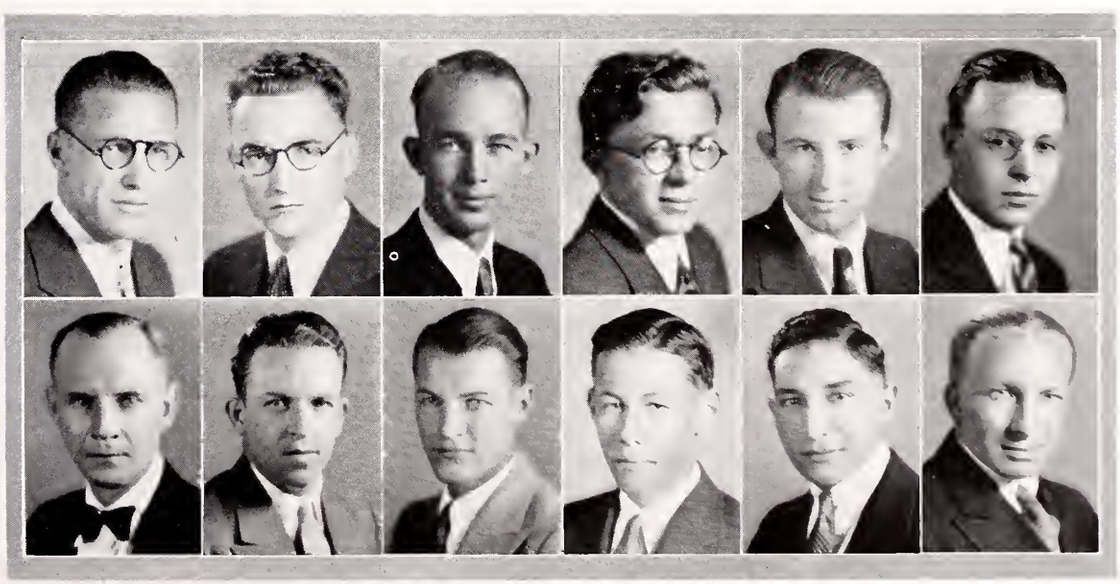

KAPPA KAPPA PSI

Kappa Kappa Psi, national honorary band fraternity, was installed on the Nevada Campus in 1930, and since that time has been an active means of promoting interest in band work. Requirements for membership include participation in the band for one semester, an average scholastic record, and an ability to play some musical instrument. The officers of the local chapter act as officers for the entire band, and the fraternity itself fulfills an advisory position for the general organization. Throughout the past year, Kenneth Elges acted as President for Kappa Kappa Psi, Gerry Brummond fulfilled the duties of Vice-President, Alvin Jacobs was Secretary, and Kistler Rivers acted as Treasurer.

The chapter was in charge of the Homecoming Day band concert, which was presented on Mackay Field by a massed group consisting of two Shrine bands, the University band, and the Sparks and Reno High School bands. Each year, Kappa Kappa Psi sponsors a band concert during the last week of school, in connection with the national music week. This spring, bands from Reno, Sparks, Carson, Susanville, Tonopah, the University, and the Shriners, plan to participate in the event.

Members of the local chapter of Kappa Kappa Psi for the past year were: Roland Boyden, Gerry Brummond, Kenneth Elges, Nolan Gault, Paul Hartman, Alvin Jacobs, Walter Mattson, Robert Palmer, Kistler Rivers, Thomas Trythall, William J. Little, Gilbert Mathews, Horace Church, and Professor Theodore Post.

SQUARE AND COMPASS

Square and Compass was formerly known on the Campus as Trowel and Square. The local organization was founded in 1907 by Silas E. Ross, who, at that time, was Grand Past Master of Nevada Thirty-third Degree Scottish Rite Masons. The society was designed as a Masonic educational organization, and helped not only to bring the Masons on the Campus closer together, but to bring them in touch with Masonic lodges in the vicinity. In April, 1926, Square and Compass, an inter-collegiate fraternity of Master Masons, granted a charter to Trowel and Square. The Nevada chapter was installed May 8, 1926.

The purpose of Square and Compass is to foster and promote the ideals of True and Accepted Masons, to uphold in college life the standards of equality, fraternity, charity, and morality, and to form a binding brotherhood among members of Square and Compass.

Members of the Nevada chapter for the past year have been: Elmer Perry, Benjamin Solari, Charles Thompson, George Russell, and George Jackson. Elmer Perry acted as president of the chapter.

Jackson Perry Solari Thompson

SIGMA GAMMA EPSILON

Sigma Gamma Epsilon is a national honorary mining fraternity. It elects each year to its membership, a certain number of junior students who have been outstanding in one of the four branches, mining, metallurgy, geology, and cermics. Regular monthly meetings are held at which time papers are presented by students, and an open discussion of mining subjects is held. Sigma Gamma Epsilon also holds meetings with the Crucible Club and arranges for special speakers for these occasions.

Members for the year were: Bennett Johnson, Minter Harris, Charles Thompson, Bernard York, Norman Annett, Gilbert Mathews, and Professors Claude Jones, B. P. Gianella, and W. S. Palmer.

Officers for the year were: Norman Annett, President; Bernard York, Vice-President; Charles Thompson, Treasurer; and Minter Harris, Historian.

The local chapter of Sigma Gamma Epsilon was established December 19, 1924.

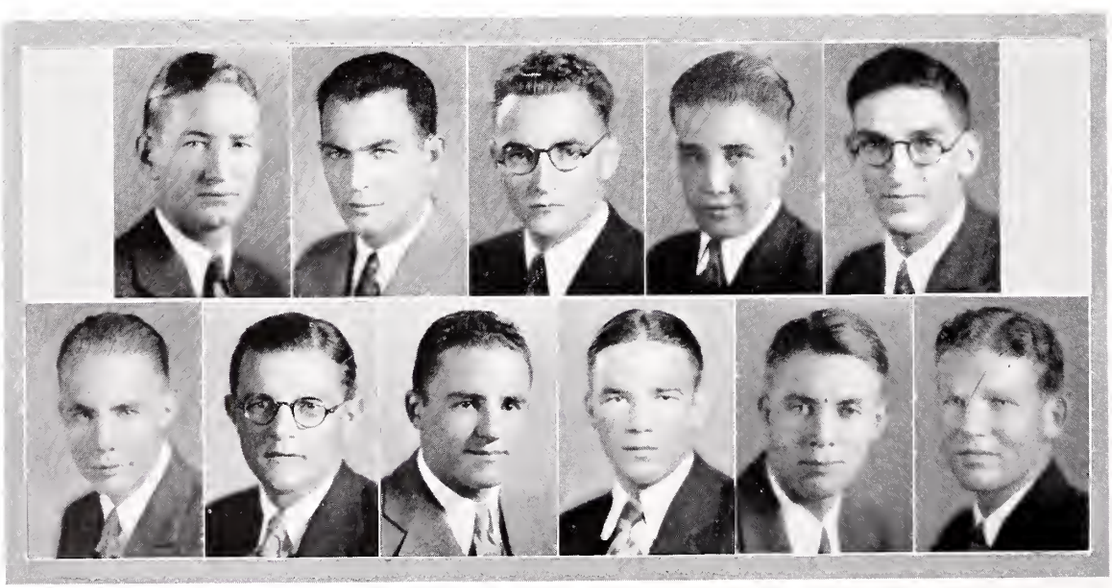

Annett Harris Johnson Mathews Thompson York

NU ETA EPSILON

Nu Eta Epsilon is a local honorary fraternity for those upperclass engineers who have been outstanding in scholarship in one of the four branches, mining, electrical, civil, or mechanical. It was established on the Nevada Campus in 1923. The members of the society for the past year were: Norman Annett, Norman Blundell, Calvin Dodsen, Alex Lohse, Benton Turner, Bernard York, Maxwell Thompson, Gerry Brummond, Francis Smith, Chester Elliott, John Fant; and S. G. Palmer, W. S. Palmer, J. C. Jones, J. A. Fulton, J. Carpenter, H. B. Sandorf, F. Bixby, C. Amens, W. Buerer, B. P. Gianella, members of the faculty.

Officers of the organizations were: Norman Annett, President; Norman Blundell, Vice-President; and Professor Bixby, Secretary-Treasurer.

MASK AND DAGGER

MASK AND DAGGER, national honorary dramatics society, was established on the Nevada Campus in 1928. Its high standards of dramatic art serve as an incentive for really fine acting. Its membership is limited both by number and ability, the organization being composed of upperclassmen who have shown themselves to be outstanding in dramatics.

The annual production which was presented during the last year by Mask and Dagger was "Berkeley Square." It is the aim of the organization to present only the most finished show possible, and those who witnessed "Berkeley Square" found this to be true.

Members of the society are: Dan Trevitt, Fred Trevitt, Vlou Trevitt, Helene Turner, Robert Griffin, William Collonan, Paul Harwood, Blythe Bulmer, Edith McLaughlin, Geraldine Harbert, John Mariani, Clifford Devine, Walter Clark, Joseph Jackson, and Bernard Hartung.

BLOCK "N" SOCIETY

The Block "N" Society is an organization composed of those men who have made a block letter in any of the three major sports, and also the managers of these sports. It is organized to promote the interests of athletics on the Campus and to aid Nevada in its inter-collegiate athletic contests. Athletics compose a large part of student activity upon the Campus, and every one who so desires receives ample opportunity to take part in some form of sport, both inter-collegiate and intra-mural. At present there are five sports in which competition is held with other colleges, three of which are major, and two minor sports. Any student who plays on a major team after filling certain requirements may be awarded a Block "N" sweater. Lesser awards have been devised to reward those taking part in a minor sport.

On the gridiron Nevada competes in the Far Western Conference. The majority of her games each year are played with other members of this conference, although competition is held with several of the leading coast colleges as well. A block letter is awarded in football to men playing a minimum of sixty-five minutes in four "letter" games, chosen before the season begins.

The Far Western Conference title is also the ultimate goal of the Wolf basketball squad. The Nevada cage team usually plays several pre-season conditioning games before entering upon the regular schedule, which lasts through January and February. To win a block letter in basketball a man must have entered sixty per cent of the scheduled games.

Nevada has always been a strong competitor in the Far Western Conference track and field meet, held annually at Sacramento. In addition to this meet, at least two dual meets are held each year. Track letters are awarded to those taking five points in any dual meet, or a single point in the conference meet.

SUNDOWNERS

The Sundowners of the Sagebrush is an honorary good-fellowship organization, typifying the spirit characteristic of this state. It is undoubtedly the most informal group on the Campus, and its primary function is to promote good feeling and harmony among the students of the University. Originally the Sundowners included in its membership only those men who had traveled extensively and visited a good deal of the country. However, in recent years, this idea has been abandoned and at present there are no special requirements for membership to the organization.

Initiation is held by the Sundowners twice during each school year, toward the end of each semester. The candidates for initiation are required to parade the Campus for one day, attired in crushed hats, ragged clothes, dirty faces, and the rest that goes to make up a typical "hobo" garb. During this day the neophytes must also beg their meals from the various sorority houses.

The year's activities for the organization consist in numerous "steak-fries" and "weinie roasts" held in the surrounding foothills; the annual Sundowner dance, which, this year, was given near the close of the fall semester, and general discussions and activities for the betterment of the University. By selecting for its members men from almost every Campus group and fraternity, the organization is able to exchange all of the various viewpoints existing on the "hill" and thus it can foster a better feeling and friendly spirit among the men students attending the University of Nevada.

The officers for this year were: Eldridge Farnsworth, President; Mathew Mohorovich, Vice-President; and Alex Lohse, Secretary and Treasurer.

CAMPUS PLAYERS

Campus Players, dramatic organization on the University of Nevada Campus, was founded in the spring of 1921 by those interested in dramatic art, the charter members being members of Clionia, a debating club, and Delta Alpha Epsilon, which has since become Chi Delta Phi. In the past eleven years, Campus Players has made remarkable progress in the field of dramatics.

The fall semester of 1931 saw an outstanding "Wolves' Frolic," which was produced jointly by Campus Players and Blue Key fraternity. "Berkeley Square" opened the spring semester of 1932, with a cast made up of the finest Campus actors. Following this, "June Moon" was presented very successfully.

Director William Kelly Collonan showed local audiences and the Campus as a whole that he can produce successful shows. In carrying out the work of his predecessors, he has built up a reputation for himself as being a director of undeniable merit.

During the past year a new organization was formed for the training of those who are interested in all the various branches of the theatre. This organization is known as Junior Campus Players, and is an auxiliary group to Campus Players. During the spring semester a new idea was worked out by this group wherein three one-act plays were presented, all the parts of which were taken by Junior Players.

The position of manager of Campus dramatics was capably handled by Fred Trevitt. He was ably assisted by the entire staff, including art, properties, script, ticket sales, advertising, and the many other branches, which made the 1931-1932 season one of the most successful that dramatics on this Campus has seen for several years. Despite the fact that financial conditions have been very poor, the organization is now running on a sound basis.

Members for the year have been: Alice Mae Atkinson, William Beemer, Oscar Bryan, Blythe Bulmer, Edwin Cantlon, Walter Clark, George Davis, Denise Denson, Clifford Devine, Wyman Evans, Florence Frohman, Louise Gastanaga, Ray Hackett, Joe Jackson, Fredrica Lippman, John Mariani, Margaret Martin, Berry McAnally, Edith McLaughlin, Robert Merriman, Charles Nichols, Oscar Robinson, Elizabeth Saxton, Mary Ruth Seamon, Dan Trevitt, Fred Trevitt, Vlou Trevitt, Helene Turner, Mae Vuich, Jack Wright, Kathryn Wright, and Wayne Van Voorhis. The faculty members were Robert Griffin, William Collonan, and Paul Harwood.

Officers for the two semesters were: Dan Trevitt, President; Vlou Trevitt, Vice-President; and Blythe Bulmer, Secretary.

PHI KAPPA PHI

As a means of celebrating the twentieth anniversary of the installation of a Phi Kappa Phi chapter at Nevada, the first annual Nevada Phi Kappa Phi Day was inaugurated here on March 11, 1932. The special feature of the day's celebration consisted of a dramatic reading of Eugene O'Neill's latest play, "Mourning Becomes Electra," by Dr. Anthony F. Blanks, Associate Professor of Public Speaking at the University of California. At the initiation services for the new members he also spoke on Virgil and his relation to learning.

Phi Kappa Phi is not a secret Greek letter society, a social fraternity, nor a professional organization, but it is an honorary society whose main purpose is to promote scholarship and present educational inducements equal to those given by dramatic or athletic groups. The initial letters of the Greek words, Philosophia Kraeti Photon, meaning "the love of learning rules the world," form the name of the scholastic society. The organization was founded at the University of Maine, in 1897, and is at the present time the second largest scholarship society in the United States. There are forty-four student chapters and one alumni chapter, with a total membership of 12,500.

The Nevada chapter was installed in 1912, and now consists of a membership of 332 men and women. The requirements for membership are a high scholastic standing, a worthy character, and leadership in student activities. Each semester the local chapter elects worthy students and faculty members to the organization, and this year Margaret Fuller, Bruce Thompson, Frances Armbruster, Edwin Force, Frederick Weeks, Norman Blundell, John Fant, William Blackler, Col. Robert Brambilla, Theodore Post, Claude C. Smith, Irving Sandorf, and Merle Deming, received the honor.

Professor Higginbotham acted as President of the Nevada Phi Kappa Phi group, and it was mainly through his efforts that an annual Phi Kappa Phi Day was inaugurated on the Nevada Campus.

Y. W. C. A.

The Young Women's Christian Association has been on the Nevada Campus for the last twenty-five years, the Campus organization having been founded before the town group was organized. Miss Winifred Wygall, now a national leader, and widely recognized in the religious field, was the first secretary for the group. The Y. W. C. A. is a working body with many different departments able to include any type of college student. The organization is led by a Cabinet composed of the President and her assistants, who are each in charge of work in one of the divisions, be it finance, social service, music, study, or an international affairs group, where discussions and constructive projects are held. It is the aim of the organization to be a broadening influence on college life, helping the development of new friendships and understandings.

One of the chief activities of the association is the fostering of educational interest in foreign countries by bringing to the Campus eminent speakers for lectures, assemblies, and student body meetings. During the past year the group was able to engage several prominent people as lecturers, including Maud Russell, an American educator from China, who spoke on the Communistic movement in that country; Miss Mary Bentley, of the Education Department of the University of California; Miss Ruth Berendsohn, a leader of the Youth movement of Germany; Miss Lucille Day, a leader in the modernizing of Turkey and at one time in the employ of the government and of the Pasha, who talked on "Mestapha Kemal Pasha and the Rebirth of Turkey" and Miss Ann Guthrie, an educator from South America.

Each year the Y. W. C. A. sponsors a beautiful Easter Pageant, a religious spectacle of Sir Galahad and the Holy Grail, in which they are assisted by the combined Glee Clubs and the Community Orchestra.

During the past year the activities of the Y. W. C. A. Cabinet were directed by Marion Nichols, President; Nell Lozano, Vice-President; Mary Trudelle, Secretary; and Helen Olmstead, Treasurer. Members of the Cabinet were: Denise Denson, Nell Lozano, Marjorie Myles, Marian Nichols, Helen Olmstead, Myra Sauer, Elsie Seaborn, Catherine Slavin, Helen Steinmiller, Mary Adeline Thompson, Vlou Trevitt and Mary Trudelle.

AGGIE CLUB

The Aggie Club was first organized in 1909 for the purpose of promoting a greater interest in agriculture, and was reorganized in 1914. Men and women students of the College of Agriculture, as well as faculty members in the department, are eligible for membership in the club. Regular meetings are held each month, at which time business and social activities are carried on.

Up until the last few years, the Aggie Club was one of the most active Campus groups participating in the Homecoming Day festivities. In connection with the day, the Aggie Club sponsored the annual Nevada Potato and Apple Show, and also included a stock contest along with the exhibits. This year, due to an enforced decrease in the amount of money allotted to the Agricultural Department, the Aggies were compelled to confine their Homecoming Day activities to the giving of the dance which comes at the close of the celebration. Also due to a lack of finances, the sending of a stock judging team to the Pacific International Livestock Exposition was omitted from the year's activities.

In the spring semester, the Aggie Club, in conjunction with Mr. R. B. Jepson, Vocational Agricultural Director, sponsored the contests for the meeting of the Future Farmers of America. This organization is composed of young boys who are interested in agriculture, and meets each year to conduct contests in stock and crop judging, and in meat, weed, and seed identification. A public speaking contest for the young farmers is also held in connection with the agricultural contests.

During the past year, offices of the club were very capably filled by the following: Louie Gardella, President; Robert Dutton, Vice-President; Edmund Recanzone, Secretary; and Benjamin Solari, Treasurer.

Members of the Aggie Club were: Arvin Boerlin, Robert Bankofier, Roy Bankofier, Robert Dutton, John Flournoy, Louie Gardella, Atilio Genasci, William Hill, Goldie Holmes, James Jensen, George Johnson, Fred Kingsley, Keith Lee, Lloyd Mills, Vernon Mills, Douglas Olsen, Edmund Recanzone, Magnus Sherupp, Benjamin Solari, Oliver Sturla, Fred Weeks, John Wilson, John Winters, and Marshall Woodward.

HOME ECONOMICS CLUB

Membership in the Home Economics Club is composed of the faculty members of the department, the Home Economics majors, and all other students who are carrying, or who have carried two or more hours in the department, and who have paid their dues before the second meeting of each semester. The club was founded in the spring of 1921, for the purpose of promoting the activities of Home Economics on the Campus and throughout the state; to stimulate interest in the aims, history, and accomplishments of the Home Economics movement throughout the world; and to gain experience so that the members might better further that movement.

During the course of the year, a fairly set program is carried out. The faculty entertains all Home Economics students at a reception which follows the first business meeting of the semester. In October, plans are made for participation in the Homecoming festivities. The program of the December meeting is in memory of Ellen H. Richards, the woman to whom much of the credit for the Home Economics movement is due. During February and March, extensive plans are made for Mackay Day, the club having full charge of the planning and serving of the luncheon for the day. At the last meeting, held in April, a banquet is served to all the members. This is one of the most enjoyable functions of the year, as it affords a chance for a congenial gathering of all those interested in the work of the club. Following the banquet and the business meeting, the seniors entertain with a traditional stunt.

The Home Economics Club pin is prized very highly by those who are privileged to wear it. It is awarded to students only after they have performed a certain amount of satisfactory work. The amount of work required is determined by the point system, two hundred and fifty points being necessary. These points are earned by working on committees, holding offices, attending meetings, and by participation in programs. Good scholarship and work in club activities is further rewarded by election to Sigma Sigma, local Home Economics honorary society for upperclass women.

Officers for the past year were: Verna Selmer, President; Betty Allen, Vice-President; Alice Batchelder, Secretary; Mildred Huber, Treasurer; Mildred Goble, Historian; and Jean Sauer, Press Agent.

COSMOPOLITAN CLUB

The Cosmopolitan Club was founded on the University Campus in 1923 by Edward Min, with the aim of promoting international harmony; to study and discuss world affairs; to create an interest in cosmopolitanism and the various nationalities; and to promote Campus sympathy for lands and peoples outside the United States. False prejudices against race, color and religion are swept away; the main purpose of the mundialist organization is to preach that "above all is humanity."

Students attending the University from other countries will, in the Cosmopiltan Club, find a group of sincere, understanding, and sympathetic friends. The foreign student is made to feel at home, not as though he were set adrift in a strange world. The members of the Cosmopolitan Club are bound by the chain of youth, internationalism, and the pursuit of learning.

During the past year a complete reorganization of the club was effected, which served the purpose of arousing greater interest in its activities. An entirely new constitution was adopted, making membership more difficult to attain, and restricting the number of fraternity and sorority members from any one group, thus almost precluding the possibility that the Cosmopolitan Club might become entangled in Campus politics.

A definite plan for each meeting of the organization was worked out; and interest in the meetings has been augmented through instructive talks by members of the faculty who have had experiences abroad. Talks by foreign students on their own countries before downtown service clubs have been among the activities of the Cosmopolitan Club during the past year.

The members of the organization for the year were: John E. McNamara, America; Betty Saxton, Norway; Helen Steinmiller, America; Howard Wong, China; Amar C. Lakhanpal, India; Lucas Penido, Philippine Islands; Eugenia Wainwright, France; Angelina DeNevi, Italy; Dwight Nelson, Sweden; and Dean Maxwell Adams, Dr. B. F. Chapelle, and Dr. C. R. Hicks, faculty members.

The officers for the two semesters were: Dwight Nelson, President; Angelina DeNevi, Vice-President; and Eugenia Wainwright, Secretary-Treasurer. Nelson followed the graduation of Elias Bumatay, former President, at Christmas.

CHEMISTRY CLUB

In 1925, students of chemistry felt the need of an organization for those interested in that science, and as a result, the Chemistry Club was organized. Membership is open to anyone interested in chemistry, although there are standards of grades in chemistry and other subjects that must be maintained. Interest is stimulated throughout the year by the presentation of various moving pictures of chemical developments. The club aims to keep abreast of modern achievements in chemistry and to foster an interest in that science throughout the Campus.

Exceptional ability in the field of chemistry is recognized by the local honorary society, Sigma Sigma Kappa. Membership in the society for the past year was made up of: Cecil Harris, Donald Butler, Alvin Jacobs, Edward Dyer, Francis Oakberg, and Thomas Johnson.

Officers of the Chemistry Club for the past year were: Archie Wood (deceased), President; Edward Dyer, Vice-President; Dorothy Kallenbach, Secretary; George Lemon, Treasurer; Professor Deming, Faculty Advisor.

CRUCIBLE CLUB

The Crucible Club is a mining engineering society affiliated with the American Institute of Mining Engineers. It is organized for the purpose of giving extra-curricula and social activity to all mining engineers. Upperclass members of the Crucible Club who have a high standing are eligible to become student associates of the A. I. M. E. and to be elected to Sigma Gamma Epsilon.

Throughout the past year some of the meetings of the society have been held in conjunction with Sigma Gamma Epsilon, and such notable men as Senator Oddie; Ott F. Heiser, of the Mill City tungsten properties; H. R. Cooke, Reno mining attorney; Representative Arentz; and ex-Governor Scrugham, have been the guest speakers at the meetings. Foremost among the trips taken this year by the society was a visit to Virginia City, which included an inspection of the Sutro Tunnel level.

Officers of the organization for the year have been: John White, President; Edward Usnick, Vice-President; Renard Farrar, Treasurer; and Victor Kral, Secretary.

CIVIL ENGINEERS

The Civil Engineering Society at the University of Nevada is a student branch of the American Society of Civil Engineering. All students majoring in civil engineering automatically become members of the group. The purpose of the society is, through contact with the other chapters in other American colleges, to make possible a better understanding of the problems which confront a civil engineering graduate in the many phases of his work.

The Nevada branch of the organization meets once every month to discuss local business and any national business that has been brought before them through the headquarters of the society. At every possible opportunity, a speaker of either local or national reputation is called upon to present a discussion on some modern engineering problem.

Those holding office for the organization throughout the year were: Walter Reid, President; Jack Smith, Vice-President; William Squires, Secretary and Treasurer.

ELECTRICAL ENGINEERS

The University of Nevada Electrical Engineering Society is a branch of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, the national group being founded in 1884. The objects of the Institute are the advancement of the theory and practice of electrical engineering and of the allied arts and sciences, the maintenance of a high professional standard among its members, and the development of the individual engineer.

The membership of the association is made up of all those students who are majoring in electrical engineering. Regular meetings are held, at which time outside speakers are engaged or papers are presented by the various members of the group.

Officers of the society for the fall semester were: Donald Knapp, President; Calvin Dodsen, Vice-President; Orvis Reil, Secretary-Treasurer. During the second semester, Calvin Dodsen acted as President; Chester Elliott was Vice-President; and Orvis Reil retained his office of the previous semester. Stanley Palmer acted as Faculty Advisor for the group.

MECHANICAL ENGINEERS

The Mechanical Engineers Club was founded in 1921 as a student branch of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. Its aims are to further interest in mechanical engineering and the new developments in that field, and to provide an opportunity for the student engineers to discuss and exchange ideas and opinions. The members derive mutual benefit from the organization since there is a common interest, and by contact with the national organization they are able to work toward a future efficiency in this field.

Officers for the two semesters were: Howard Galloway, President; James Wallace, Secretary-Treasurer; and Wayne Buerer, Faculty Advisor.

ASSOCIATED ENGINEERS

The Associated Engineers is an organization of approximately two hundred students registered in the four different engineering schools. All engineering students are members. It is the purpose of the association to organize the students and the engineering societies for engineering activities, and to give all members the benefit of good lecturers and motion picture films which it is able to obtain.

Regular meetings are held throughout the year and numerous interesting speakers help to enlighten the students on general engineering subjects. On Homecoming Day, the association has charge of the organization of the various engineering societies in order that the entire school may be on exhibition, and that it will be represented in the parade. A mucking contest for the mining students, and a chaining contest for all engineers, with suitable cups for each, are sponsored on Mackay Day by the Associated Engineers.

The officers for the year 1931-1932 have been: Harold Sanford, President; Fred Small, Vice-President; and Mason Myers, Secretary-Treasurer.

Sanford Small Myers

STRAY GREEKS

The Stray Greeks is an organization composed of men from other universities whose fraternities do not maintain chapters at Nevada. The need for such an organization has long been felt on the Campus, but it was not until the present year that any definite action toward organizing was made. Membership in the Inter-Fraternity Council was granted to the group in the spring semester.

Throughout the year, the Stray Greeks have taken part in the Homecoming celebration, and in other activities, and have competed in inter-fraternity sports.

Members of the organization for the year were: John S. Smith, Kappa Sigma, Washington State College; Ralph Robinson, Beta Theta Pi, Knox College; August L. Bernes, Theta Kappa Nu, University of California; John C. Bryan, Kappa Sigma, Stanford University; Raleigh R. Watson, Kappa Sigma, University of Southern California; Edwin N. Lewis, Kappa Sigma, University of Southern California; H. Jackson Stephans, Chi Phi, University of Illinois; William H. Squires, Theta Chi, University of California at Los Angeles; Albert N. Tibbits, Phi Lambda Pi, Armour Institute, Chicago, Illinois; Anthony O. Tesone, Pi Kappa Alpha, University of Colorado; and Richard Fry, Phi Mu Delta, University of California.

During the fall semester, John Smith acted as president, and Ralph Robinson as secretary-treasurer. In the spring semester, the office of president was held by August Bernes, and that of secretary-treasurer by John Bryan.

MILITARY

A glitter and a clanking in the sun;
underneath the blossoming trees brown ranks go by. The petals fall.
Always there is the falcon's eye.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

Colonel Robert Brambila

The University of Nevada maintains an Infantry Unit of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, Senior Division. The Basic Course in Military Science and Tactics is given in the Freshman and Sophomore years in the University curricula. This basic course requires of the student's time three hours per week of classroom or practical out-of-door instruction.

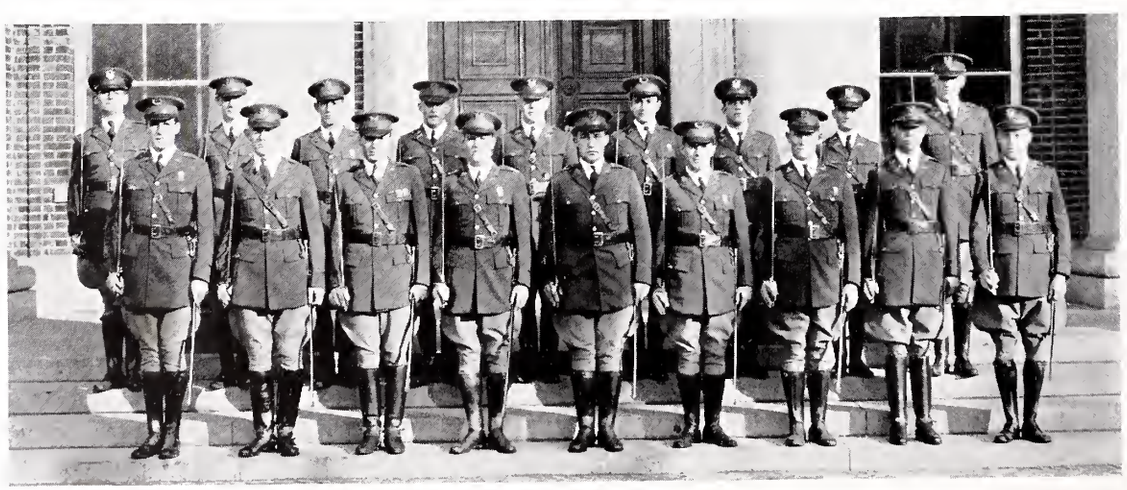

For the Junior and Senior years of University work, an advanced course is offered, which is open to graduates of the basic course who have shown themselves proficient and qualified by personality and character to profit by the advanced training which leads to a commission in the Officers' Reserve Corps, United States Army. Aside from its physical benefits, time devoted to military studies in the R. O. T. C. course is fully entitled to credit in the general scheme of mental culture. In subjecting themselves to discipline, which is essential to team work, young men soon learn the secret of modern civilization, which depends upon the combined action of human beings to common ends. Exactness, neatness, obedience, health, posture, and training in team work are in themselves civic virtues, worthy of cultivation.

These virtues are secured in the military instruction in a more definite and effective way than in any other University department. The United States Army is associated with convictions of obligation, with a sense of responsibility, with a manly, and, more than manly, a gentlemanly code of conduct, with love and loyalty for country.

The military instruction also includes much information of a general and practical value to students for a successful life and citizenship; for a greater capacity for more valuable service to their nation in case of emergency, if the students should, at any time in their lives, be called upon to render such service.

The school year 1931-1932 was Colonel Robert M. Brambila's first year as Commander at Nevada since 1909. He graduated from the University of Nevada with the class of 1897, and was Professor of Military Science and Tactics at this University from 1905 to 1909. Colonel Brambila has returned to Nevada and brought to the Military Department a wide knowledge of his profession, gathered from years of experience in, and study of, the United States Army. He is assisted in the Military Department by First Lieutenant Herbert B. Wilcox and Sergeant Grant H. Hustis, United States Army.

MILITARY DEPARTMENT

Cadet Major Carl Elges

In conjunction with the actual military training given on the Campus, the Military Department sponsors a University of Nevada Rifle Team, composed of from ten to fifteen of those students regularly enrolled in the Basic Course in Military Science and Tactics, or in the advanced course in military training, who are selected on the basis of their ability as marksmen with an army rifle.

During the second semester of each school year, numerous postal matches are scheduled with various rifle teams representing universities and colleges in all parts of the United States.

The Associated Students of the University of Nevada present each year to those men on the Rifle Team fulfilling the necessary requirements as specified in the constitution, a Circle "N" similar to the awards given for participation in the various minor sports on the Campus. This year the Rifle Team engaged in a very extensive schedule, including matches with twenty-four universities and colleges, competing against some of the finest collegiate marksmen in the United States.

Other than these scheduled matches, the team fired in all three stages of the Corps Area Gallery Match, held during the period from January 26 to February 25. This match is a large composite contest, composed of all colleges and universities on the Pacific Coast maintaining R. O. T. C. units.

Firing for the 1931-1932 school year was concluded the week ending March 12, with Nevada's entry into the Hearst Trophy Match. The Rifle Team was made up of the following men: Ned Morehouse, Arvin Boerlin, Wendell Duplantis, Robert Anderson, William Stuart, James Young, George Steffens, William Hill, William Best, Arthur Chloupek, Paul Fontana, Robert Marean, Corado Giovanetti, and Paul Nichols. Of the fourteen members composing the team, the first ten named were awarded the Circle "N" for intercollegiate shooting.

A chapter of Scabbard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, is maintained on the Nevada Campus. Membership is limited to the members of the Cadet Officers Corps and to such others as are deemed worthy of becoming members of the organization. One of the chief functions of the society is the sponsoring of the Military Ball, the annual formal dance of the Military Department.

NEVADA LIFE

Paddlings, lakings, field day, Homecoming, and many other things go to make up the things which only the unwise would want to forget. Pictures have the power to bring back memories of events that were milestones in our college career, and which will always remain so.

CAMPUS PERSONALITIES

Here is a certainty come of continuous demand, and the lone right to choose, with languid eyes and an amused air. Still, she is here.

MISS MARION STONE

HONORARY MAJOR

Chosen by the Student Body to preside at the Military Ball and to sponsor all Scabbard and Blade activities.

MISS HAZEL DAVIS

MACKAY DAY QUEEN

Chosen by the Mackay Day Committee on the basis of personality to preside over the various activities of the celebration.

MISS DONNIE SULLIVAN

MACKAY DAY QUEEN

Chosen by the Mackay Day Committee on the basis of personality to preside over the various activities of the celebration.

MISS GERALDINE HARBERT

MACKAY DAY QUEEN

Chosen by the Mackay Day Committee on the basis of personality to preside over the various activities of the celebration.

PERSONALITIES OF THE CAMPUS

"As we know them."

MARION STONE
"Honorary Major"

HAZEL DAVIS
"Mackay Day Queen"

DONNIE SULLIVAN
"Mackay Day Queen"

GERALDINE HARBERT
"Mackay Day Queen"

This year saw the inauguration of two new customs on the Nevada Campus. The first of these, the election by popular vote of an Honorary Major, was sponsored by the members of Scabbard and Blade, and by the Military Department. The person selected, Marion Stone, presided at the Military Ball, and at various other activities conducted by the two organizations throughout the year. The second new custom was instituted by the committee in charge of Mackay Day, to add interest and variety to the program for the day. Those selected in this case were chosen on the basis of personality by the members of the committee. The selections made in both contests were well received by the student body, and both contests promise to become traditions of the school. The three Mackay Day queens, under the direction of the committee, each planted a tree in the Memorial Circle for Deans Haseman and Jones, and took a part in the other artivities of the celebration. In the evening they presented cups to the winners of the contests and were honored guests at the Mackay Day dance. Cups were awarded to the Sigma Phi Sigma fraternity for a one hundred per cent turnout for the work in the morning; to Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity for the house with the greatest percentage of bearded members present; to John Griffin for the blackest; to Cedric Maydwell for the best; to Herbert Clark for the reddest; to Professor Carpenter for the worst; and to Dean Adams for the oldest faculty member present at the dance.

PICTORIAL YEAR

Lend ear, lend ear,
the talking doll, she shows
you yesterday as yesterday was as today!

MACKAY SCIENCE BUILDING

MACKAY SCHOOL OF MINES

Throughout the entire year, the Frosh and the Sophs have had a great time of it. Although the Frosh won the Field Day, the Sophs have not been lax in administering punishment to the first year men. On the top of the page, a Frosh has just left the hands of the members of the Vigilance Committee. In the circle, Bryan dashes for safety as the tire rush starts. Members of Upperclass Committee look on during the tie-up to see that no one is hurt—too much. In the next picture, there seems to be a little dissension as to which way the tire is to go. Jack Adams gives the Sophomores a little trouble in the tie-up and it takes three of them to handle him. The circle shows an exclusive view of some of the Sophomores who suffered the embarrassment of being thrown into the lake by the Frosh. In the lower left, the jousting match is on and the paint flows freely. Someone does a swan dive into the lake, and, below, somebody must be swallowing a lot of water.

Giving the huge block "N" on Peavine mountain its semi-annual coat of new paint is the task of every Freshman class. The work is done under the supervision of the Upperclass Committee, and punishment for those who do not show up for work is meted out by the Sophomore class. The two upper pictures show the Frosh waiting to get a bucket of whitewash and send it up the hill; and the dash down the hill after the work is all finished. In the upper right-hand corner, some lowly Frosh is learning that the way of tradition breakers is hard. In the circle directly below, Maxwell is almost floored by Stowell in the class boxing matches. Martinez and his opponent, and Hart and his opponent, seem to go more for sparring than for real fighting. Some idea of the size of the "N" is gained by the picture showing the long line that formed the bucket brigade up the side of the mountain. Many barrels of material and many gallons of water are needed before the huge letter has gotten its bath.

The Homecoming Day parade, when the fraternities, sororities, and organizations wrack their brains for original ideas for their floats. The whole school turns out for the occasion and for the football game afterwards. The Military Department turns out in full force for the parade. In the circle on the left, the Gamma Phi float is shown. The ship is the entry of the Taus, while the rickety old wagon on the left was entered by the Sigma Nus. Directly below the writeup, two of the floats are waiting while the judges decide who is to be declared the winner. In the circle is a view of the Campus Players' float, the winner of the prize for organizations. To the left of this, the Lambda Chi entry, the winner among the fraternities, is shown. Originality and hard work combined to win the cup. On the right, two other entries are shown, the top one being that of the Pi Phis, and the lower one being, very obviously, that of the Electrical Engineers.

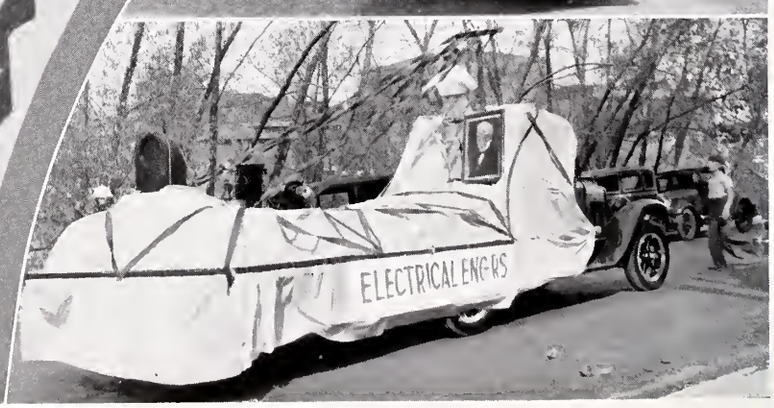

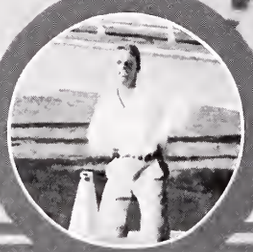

More pictures of the Homecoming Day parade. After covering the downtown district, the parade circled Mackay Field, where it was viewed by the largest crowd ever to attend a football game at Nevada. Approximately 6,000 people watched the Wolf Pack swamp the Fresno Bulldogs. In the upper right-hand corner the float of the Stray Greeks, which was very cleverly worked out, is shown. In the next picture, the silver industry of the state gets a boost. On the right, the Tri Delt reproduction of the University gates leading to all parts of the globe. This float took the prize offered for the best sorority entry. Directly above the write-up is the entry of the Beta Deltas. Visiting Shriners from California lent color and gaiety to the celebration, and combined with the University, Reno, and Sparks High School bands to provide music for the occasion. Adamson and Wilson have to have their fun. At the bottom of the page, the S. A. E. float.

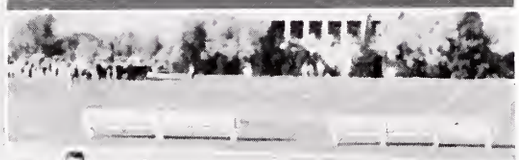

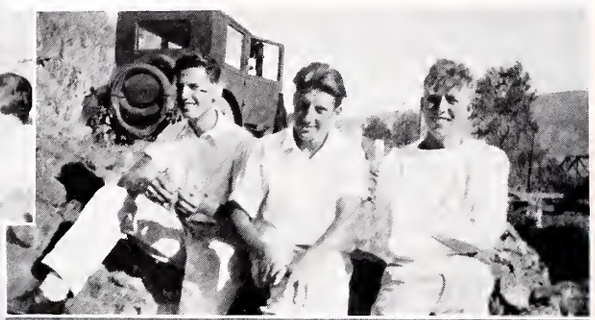

The camera man tries to save the staff some money by taking two pictures on the same negative, and this is the result. His spacing was very poor. Hartung asks to lead a yell at the coaches' rally, and then wondered why he didn't get much response. But who could yell anyway, with a face like that looking up at them? In the picture directly below, Brewster Adams, one of Nevada's loyal backers, is introduced at the rally, and he in turn presents Coach Philbrook. In the circle at the left, Bledsoe, Foster and Johnson pose for an action picture while painting the tennis courts on Mackay Day. Directly below this write-up, Priest, Taber, and Umber are shown in the great wide-open spaces where stag parties are the style. The big thing about the picture in the circle below seems to be John Stock. On Mackay Day everybody wants to keep working all the time, and it was with the greatest difficulty that we managed to get the group in the lower left together for their picture. In the lower right, a picture of the Frosh-Reno game is shown.

The Military Ball was a gala affair, with all the cadet officers getting an opportunity to show off their uniforms to advantage. Marion Stone, as Honorary Major, was the honored guest of the evening. Above the write-up, the Lambda Chis pause for a picture while cleaning up the grounds. In the upper corner, Pitcher "Wild Bill" Blackler exhibits rare form. Below, Nevada "almost" scores on Cal. when Parsons gets away for a good gain. Further down the page, a picture is shown of one of the times that Cal. did not make much headway against the Nevada forward wall. The area surrounding the Bulletin Board is a place of beauty and charm. In the small circle, a picture of Jim Wallace, president of the sophomore class for the first semester. At the bottom is a view of the large and enthusiastic crowd that watched the Wolf Pack go down to defeat at the hands of the Dons from San Francisco University. A glorious game and a fitting close to a successful season. Yes.

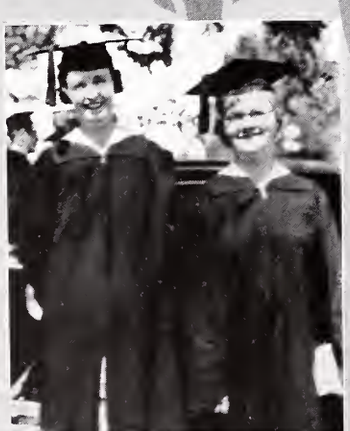

Senior Week—the time when the class takes time out to reflect on the past four years. The week is filled with pleasurable activities, chief among which are the Senior-Faculty baseball game and the Senior Pilgrimage. At the top, Prof. Feemster and Doc Martie are shown to advantage, apparently amused at the ball game. In the circle, Sheerin, Burner, and Vargas show what intelligent seniors should look like. The Pilgrimage pauses at the Gates to reflect a minute. Directly below, the graduating class is on its way for the ceremonies. Below the write-up, Jack Walther is making a dash for third, while Doc awaits the ball. In the circle, Edwin Cantlon and Col. Ryan lead the march to the Gym for the exercises. On the left, Jean Hughes and Doris Thompson. Directly below, Jean recalls some of the memories of the Tram. In the lower right, the class pauses on Mackay Field to recall the memories of the Wolf Pack; and the procession just before the seniors become alumni.

Varied pictures picked at random. George Davis and Bill Blakely lead the Nevada rooters at the Cal. game. Thanks to the support received from the Sacramento Junior College students, the Nevada side of the field made a very creditable showing. Winter and summer both have their charms as is shown by the two scenes at the top. On the left, the Frosh and Reno mix it up during their game. Football would appear to be on the up-grade if the picture at the right can be taken as evidence. The picture in the small circle shows one of the stars from the San Francisco Boys' Club starting off on an end run in the game between the halves of the Cal. game. Two poses of the Army Mule which gave the spectators something to laugh at in the Army game. The Aggies bemoan the forced lease of the University farm with appropriate ceremonies in which "Old Ned," or whatever he is called, is buried with a very impressive service.

In the upper corner, Davis, Blakely, Devine and Tomamichael pose very nicely for their pictures, while Mann prefers to look on, perhaps realizing that he is to appear in a better role on one of the other pages. Thompson is caught in one of his meditative moods, while Margaret Fuller recalls one of the days of her childhood. You can guess with us as to what the small picture on the left represents. On the right, the two yell leaders exhibit some of their exuberance and cheer by performing funny antics for the assembled crowds. The space below the Tram presents a pretty sight when garbed in winter's mantle. "Doc" Martie comes off the field after administering first aid to one of the Wolf Pack with some of that mysterious stuff that he packs around in his satchel. Elizabeth Carpenter goes back to the good old days when men were men and women wore clothes. The Mining and the Science Buildings in winter. Wilson talks business.

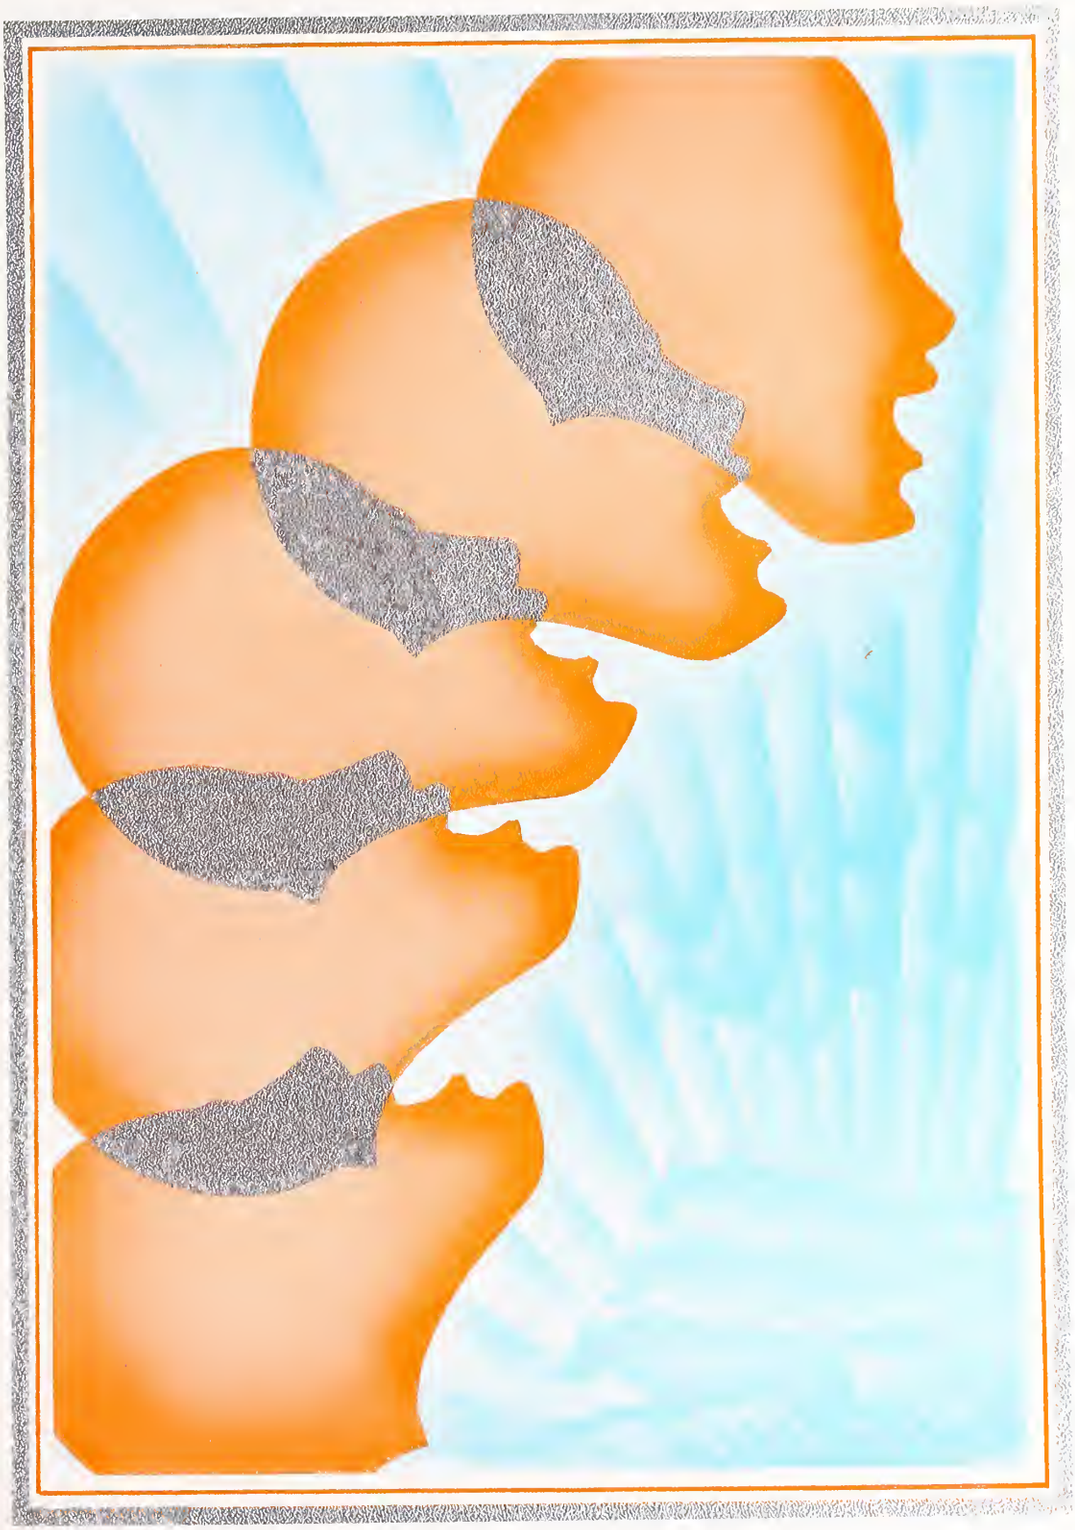

Members of the Girls' Tumbling team exhibit their skill and form by posing for the camera man. The bench-warmers of the Dons appear to be having a hard time in keeping themselves warm. The Mackay statue stands out above the snow, with the upturned face ever looking forward. The Beta Kappas give evidence of the artistic ability of some of their enterprising members by sculpturing two very fine statues in snow. On the left, some lonesome person waits for her lover. We are not sure, but the person looks a great deal like Marjorie Record. Yoo-hoo, Buckie! Where art thou? In direct contrast to the summery scene on the left, Manzanita Hall looks cold and forbidding. In the two small pictures below, Ed Reed and Bill Ligon expostulate at the Toxin rally, hailed as the end of the school, but in reality a very smart trick pulled for a very unsuspecting student body. At the bottom Phil Mann leads the singing at one of the games.

ADVERTISEMENTS

The advertisers—the people that make this book possible. People interested in the efforts of the students to produce a worthwhile book. Backers not only of the publications, but of every student activity. Deserving of your support and of all the thanks the Editor and the Manager can bestow on them.

APPRECIATION

THE PEOPLE and the business houses listed on the following pages have constantly shown their interest in the University of Nevada, not only in subscribing to the Artemisia, but in supporting all student activities. With the various programmes and the many other things besides the three publications to which the advertiser is asked to contribute, there is a constant drain on the business men of Reno and the surrounding territory. The staff of the Artemisia fully realizes how much this means to the advertisers and sincerely hopes that they will be able to feel that in this case at least, the returns justify the expenditure. In saying this, the editor and the manager of the Artemisia urge and request, not only the students, but everyone else who reads this book, to go through the following section and note those individuals and firms that have made this publication possible, and then to keep the names in mind whenever making purchases. Firms representing almost every type of business have placed advertisements in this year's book and if the reader will note those places at which he may have occasion to trade, he will be assured of receiving the services of the better business houses.

APPRECIATION

THE EDITOR and the Business Manager of the 1932 Artemisia wish to take this opportunity to express their sincere appreciation to the following people for their cooperation and aid in producing this yearbook:

The advertisers, who so generously cooperated with the staff, thus making possible the publication of a book the size of the Artemisia.

Mr. T. H. Ellsworth of the Graphic American Yearbooks Company, whose valuable suggestions and help in the laying out of the book, and whose supervision of the work on all cuts has made this publication more unified and more beautiful.

Mr. Frost, Mr. Shipaugh, Mr. Parish, and Mr. Royce, of the Reno Printing Company, whose sincere interest in the book is evidenced by the quality of the printing and typography.

Mr. Mortensen, of Hollywood, for his work on the six etchings which comprise the scenic section of the book.

Mr. Anderson, of the Graphic American Yearbooks Company, for the art work on the opening pages, divisions, and sub-divisions.

The S. K. Smith Company, of Chicago, for their splendid cooperation in the designing and manufacturing of the covers.

The Paralta Studios, of Reno, for the photographic work which appears in this book.

And last, but not least, the members of both the editorial and business staffs, without whose help we could not have produced this yearbook.

—THE EDITOR and THE MANAGER.
